TROOPS QUELL THE CAMORRA

VITERBO, March 22.—Riotingcaused by opposing lawyers during the Camorrist trial to-day caused a hasty adjournment of the case, and soldiers were called in to clear the courtroom.

The carabineer guards found themselves unable to cope with the situation, and a company of regular infantry was compelled to batter the contestants into submission. The prisoners attempted to escape from their steel cage, but were finally whipped.

The juror who was stricken yesterday having recovered, the trial was resumed in the Assize Court before President Cavalieri Bianchi, with Giuseppi Salvi, one of the accused murderers of both Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife, "the beautiful sorrentina," on the stand.

Enrico Alfano, alias "Erricone," and his "fatty-eight" Neapolitan associates watched the puny and insignificant Salvi carefully as he testified. The court interrogated the witness closely as to the murder of the beautiful Signora Cuocolo, while the prisoner at times gave way to sobs.

"I Am Victim of a Plot."

Salvi roundly denounced the carabineers and magistrates as soon as he was given an opportunity for a lengthy statement, and declared that he had given the gold ring bearing Gennaro Cuocolo's address to a woman friend in whose house it had been found by carabineers.

"They placed it there," he cried. "I am innocent. I am not a Camorrist. I am the victim of machiavellian plot and all are against me."

The riot was precipitated when Cavaliere Santero, the crown's advocate, made a motion to place the gold ring, mentioned in Salvi's testimony, in evidence. No sooner had the motion been made than counsel for the prisoner arose and began hurling taunts and insults at the lawyer representing Gennaro Abatemaggio, the betrayer of the Camorra.

"You have one foot now and you are cowering to remain here," cried the infuriated barrister. The prosecuting attorney threatened to imprison the lawyers while the Camorrists in their cages joined in the commotion, screaming taunts and insults at the court, the authorities, the prosecutor and Abatemaggio.

Above all could be heard Alfano screaming: "You are paid by the carabineers with secret funds and we are being led to our murder through treachery."

Prisoners Try to Escape.

The court in vain tried to restore order. The spectators at once joined in

TAFT TO CONFER WITH JAP ENVOY

WASHINGTON, March 22.—President Taft to-day asked Baron Yasuya Uchida, the Japanese Ambassador, to call at the White House this afternoon, stating he would then reassure the Japanese people personally that there has been no occasion for bringing Japan into the Mexican situation.

The President's intentions in this matter were given out at last week's cabinet meeting, and the administration regretted that sensational stories had been printed throughout the country tending to show that Japan and not Mexico was the real concern of the administration and that country's activity had prompted the mobilization of the 20,000 troops in Texas.

The lie direct, it was said, would be told by the President that this government entertains no fear as to the reported purpose of Japan to establish itself in Mexico, and that the American people give no credence to the suggestion that any hostile feeling exists between the two countries.

This conference was called on the initiative of President Taft and not the Japanese ambassador.

AVVOCATI CAUSANO TUMULTO

VITERBO, 22 Marzo.—Oggi, durante l'udienza del processo della Camorra, gli avvocati, arrivati tra loro, causarono un tumulto, che costrinse immantinente il Presidente della Corte a sospendere l'udienza. I soldati furono chiamati per espellere gli spettatori dalla sala.

I carabinieri di guardia non poterono affrontare da soli la situazione ed una compagnia di fanteria fu costretta a battere i due campi avversi per costringerli alla sottomissione.

I Camorristi Tentano la Fuga.

I camorristi, durante il tumulto, tentarono di scappare dalle loro gabbie di ferro, ma furono ultime ratteuuti ed assicurati.

Il Giurato, che cadde ammalato ieri, stamane e' ritornato nel banco dei giurati, riabilitato. La Corte, sotto la presidenza del cav. Bianchi, riprende l'interrogatorio degli accusati e precisamente quello di Giuseppe Salvi, uno degli accusati assassini di Gennaro Cuocolo e della di lui moglie "la bella sorrentina."

Enrico Alfano, alias "Erricone," ed i suoi trentotto compagni napoletani guardano il salmodio ed insignificante Salvi con molta attenzione mentre egli risponde alle domande del Presidente. La Corte interroga il prigioniero sopraenunciato riguardo l'assassino della bellissima signora Cuocolo, mentre il Salvi risponde con singulti.

Vittima di una congiura.

Il Salvi francamente denunzio' i carabinieri ed i magistrati, cagiona ebbe l'opportunita' di poter parlare lungamente. Egli negò' recisamente di aver regalato l'anello d'oro, che Gennaro Cuocolo portava, ed una donna sua amica, nella di lui casa il Salvi fu arrestato.

"I Carabinieri posero l'anello in," egli gride'. "Io sono innocente." Io non sono un camorrista. Sono io vittima di un complotto macchiavellico, e tutti sono contro di me."

Come Avvenne il Tumulto.

Il tumulto precipito' quando l'avv. Santoni, Procuratore Generale, propose di presentare ai giurati l'anello d'oro, di cui nell'interrogatorio di Salvi. Appena il cav. Santoro terminino' di parlare, l'avvocato dell'accusato, un suo posto per opporsi, urlando, schernendo ed insultando l'avvocato di Gennaro Abatemaggio, il traditore, la cui della polizia contro la Camorra.

"Voi avete venduto i5 vostra toga e siete indegni di chiamar qui!," grido l'infuriato avvocato. Il Pubblico Ministero cercò di arrestare gli avvocati, mentre i camerieri, comunali, nelle loro gabbie, scagliavano minacce, insulti e sfuperi contro la Corte, i Giurati, il Pubblico Ministero e Contro Abatemaggio.

Si Tenta la Fuga.

La Corte intanto tento' di rimettere Ordine. Gli spettatori al rimirono si tumultuando e fecero uno sforzo per raggiungere la porta. I camorristi scrollarono la porta della gabbia, tentando di rompere il chiavistello, quando un gruppo di carabinieri che avevano tentato di far ristabilire l'ordine nell' aula, avvenne a di rinforzo e dei mettere in gra.ia il loro arditi propositi, colpendo le loro armi con le sciabole, e costingendoli ad reiocedere al loro posti, bestemmiando e gruguando pel in rabbia.

Abatémaggio Piange.

Alatemaggio, che si era rannicchiato nella sua gabbia per la paura, prese coraggio quando vide i carabinieri che cacciavano con le sciabole gli altri prigionieri, e si rivolse all Alfano dicendo: "Erricone, voi mi ultraggiate." Poscia egli comincio' a piangere direttamente.

A cui Alfano, notando i singhiozzi del traditore, urlo': "Io spero che il sangue spirito di mio fratello Cito ci perseguiti e che voi, Abatemaggio, finirete col dire la verita'." A questo punto, il disordine era scoppiato so rinnovo' maggiormente. L'avvocato di Abatemaggio, prendendo per la sua vita, tento' di fuggire dalla Corte. Gendarmi presero allora chiamati, e finalmente il pubblico fu messo fuori non senza grandi sforzi, il Presidente Bianchi sospese la seduta e gli avvocati furono rimproverati.

Si Riprende L'Audienza.

Prima che i prigionieri avesser potuto esser riportati al carcere, Il Procuratore del Re propose alla Corte che, in vista della lunghezza del processo, che durera' per parecchi mesi, ers bene che l'udienza fosse ripresa senza indugio alcuno. Il Presidente dichiaro' che accettava la proposta.

Nello stesso tempo gli amici ed i parenti dei prigionieri gremivano a piangevano.

Poi il corpo di guardia grandemente rinforzato, l'udienza fu quindi riaperta. Ed allora Alfano grido': "Non vogliamo il Signor Presidente nel fabbuno nel vostro aiuto."

L'avvocato di Abatemaggio entro' nell'aula a questo punto e domando' il permesso di parlare, ma prima che la Corte potesse rispondergli, cadde tra le violente e svenne.

Parecchi dottori corsero al suo fianco e lo richiamarono ai suoi sensi. La Corte allora al grido' per quel momento, quando ricomparve riprese ad interrogare l'accusato Salvi.

BIG LOBBY IN INCOME TAX FIGHT

The entire State House lobby was turned loose to-day in an eleventh hour attempt to defeat ratification of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution. Up to to-day "the interests" appeared to have been sleeping, but to-day's activities showed that they are awake.

The fact that the income tax has been ratified by twenty-seven States and needs but eight more to make it a part of the organic law of the land has probably caused the awakening. Work is now rapid, for the committee on Federal Relations meets to-morrow to vote on the amendment and a committee report is actually worth several votes one way or the other.

Lobby Relies on Senate.

The lobby against the income tax puts its main reliance on the Senate. With 122 Democrats and many Republicans who voted for the income tax last year in the House they realize that there is little chance to defeat it in the House.

Members of the Federal Relations Committee were the most sought-after men in the State House to-day and the day was yet young when the lobbyists were offering to wager that the committee would be no worse than six to five for the amendment and would take the short end of a bet that it would be six to five against it.

It has been figured at the State House that at least seven members of the committee would support the amendment—Senator Hunt and Representative Haigis, Hart, Silvester, Seiglians, Toomey and Harding. Hunt, Seigliano, Toomey and Harding are Democrats, Haigis, Silvester and Hart are Republicans. Haigis voted for the amendment last year, while Silvester and Hart said on the stump and have since said that they favor the amendment.

Seven Votes Needed.

Senator John H. Hunt of Worcester, Democrat, is one of the men whom the lobbyists count as against the amendment. Representative Dirt is another. These two would give them six votes in the committee. They need seven and Gay will get the seventh before the committee meets to-morrow. Habitues of the State House who know the ins and outs are watching the committee closely.

It has been known that Senator Hunt was wavering on the income tax, but it is not believed he will have the hardihood to oppose it in view of the fact it was one of the planks in the platform on which he ran last Fall.

Senator Representative Hart, his Republican predecessor from Ward 24, Dorchester, was defeated for re-election largely because of his vote against the income tax last year.

MILITIA TELL SECRET ORDERS

Members of the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M., have declared that they have been ordered by their commanding officers not to leave the city and to hold themselves in readiness for a call to arms at any time. Added to this, the men say, were orders to put their arms and uniforms in perfect condition. Adjutant General Pearson of the State militia to-day denied that any orders of this kind have been given to the State militia. The men say they were told to keep their instructions secret.

CREDITORS STILL PURSUE ADDICKS

WILMINGTON, Del., March 22.—Judge Bradford has handed down an opinion in favor of Chas. S. Hitchman of Camden, N. J., who instituted proceedings to obtain possession of royalties in Arizona Bluebell Copper Company offered by J. Edward Addicks as security for payment of a decree obtained by G. W. Pepper against Addicks, amounting to $1,300,080. This decree was awarded to Mr. Hitchman by Pepper as receiver of the Bay State Gas Company.

GROCER LOSES LIQUOR LICENSE

John W. Patterson, a grocer holding a liquor license at No. 23 Jamaica street, Jamaica Plain, to-day lost his liquor license for the rest of the liquor year, the granting of liquor to a minor. Patterson, whose license is under the firm name of John W. Patterson & Company, was before the Licensing Board to-day and pleaded guilty. Captain Harkins appeared that a sailor, a minor, had purchased liquor.

TWO GENERALS KILLED IN HONDURAN RIOT

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, March 22.—General Lara, a veteran of the Nicaraguan revolution, and General Palma were killed in a riot at Comayagua. The riot finally became a pitched battle, and it is estimated that not less than forty of the followers of the two generals were killed, and fifty others, including several women spectators, wounded. Among the dead is a son of General Dionisio Gutierrez.

MAYOR STOPS 'EASIEST WAY'

Mayor Fitzgerald to-day sent License Clerk Casey to the manager of the Hollis Street Theatre with instructions to order the suspension of the production entitled "The Easiest Way," in which Frances Starr is starring, on the ground that it is not up to the high moral standard of what a theatre performance should be. The afternoon performance was allowed to go, but the show will not be allowed in the theatre during the rest of its engagement, which was for three weeks.

This is one of the shows which the late Mayor Hibbard stopped from coming to Boston. He sent License Clerk Casey to New York to see the show, and from what the latter reported labored it here.

When the show opened at the Hollis Street Theatre Monday night, Chief Clerk Butler and Richard Field, the Mayor's private secretary, were sent there to take notes. Some of the lines taken were shown to Mayor Fitzgerald, but he suspended judgment until Police Commissioner O'Meara had one of his men attend a performance last night. The report made by the latter was compared with those in the Mayor's possession, and to-day's action followed.

BOSTON TO BANGOR SERVICE PLANNED

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 22.—As a part of the general scheme of curtailing expenses it is said that a number of trains are to be taken off the Saugus and Medford branches, and one train between Boston and Newburyport. The Summer time table will have a train from Portsmouth to Lakeport, N. H., direct, over the Portsmouth and Dover branch. The most important move under consideration by the officials is said to be the placing of the Concord and Portsmouth branch of the Southern division under the supervision of the Portland division, which the railroad men state, would greatly improve the service between these points. The motive power and train service will be under the committees of the system, and will begin where the engines of the New Haven system leave off. It is also likely that through service from Boston to Bangor and vice-versa will be established.

BOSTON'S FIRE LOSS $3,470,141 IN 1910

The insurance losses on fires during 1910, which totaled $3,470,141, were the highest for any year of the last ten, according to the report of A. S. Lovell, president of the Boston protective department. The three most destructive fires, each involving a loss exceeding $300,000, were the plants of the Boston Rubber Shoe Company, the Blacker, Shepard Company and the Crummins, Pierce Company. Of the total claims during the last year, which numbered more than 4,000, more than one half were attended by no loss.

NEGROES FREE TO ENTER CANADA

WASHINGTON, March 22.—In response to complaints that negro immigrants from America would be refused admission to Canada, the State Department asked United States Consul Foster at Ottawa whether under Canadian law any American citizen as a class could be excluded on account of their color. Mr. Foster replied that not less than forty of the followers of the two generals were killed, and fifty others, including several women spectators, wounded. Among the dead is a son of General Dionisio Gutierrez.

FOR SPRING BODY BUILDING the Father John's Medicine, a pure food.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry H. Gay of Chestnut street announce to-day the engagement of their older daughter, Miss Caroline H. Gay, and Albert Gardner Manson of Worcester, Harvard, 1906, son of the late J. Frederick Mason. The young man is treasurer of one of the largest mill corporations of New Bedford.

Miss Gay was presented five or six years ago at a large reception at the Somerset, and at once took her place among the leaders of the younger society girls of her year. She has made notable successes in the Vincent Club plays and amateur theatricals.

Miss Marian Otis Gay, the younger sister, became engaged some months ago to Francis Burrage. Mrs. Ebenezer Gay is the grandmother, and Messrs. E. Howard, William Otis and Walter Gay, the Paris artist, and Mr. Joseph and Mr. Benjamin Dorr are uncles. Mrs. Gay was Caroline Dorr.

Mr. Gay arrived home Tuesday night from a trip to the West Indies, and this afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Gay receive their son and their daughter's friends in honor of the engagement.

TO ASK PARDON FOR JUDSON HALL

Although he has not yet served two months of his eight-year sentence, friends of Judson W. Hall, of Worcester, will in a few days formally ask Governor Foss to pardon the aged man, who was convicted as a result of a moral crusade in Worcester. David F. O'Connell of Worcester and General Charles W. Hardy of this city, attorneys, will present the petition to Governor Foss. It will be urged that Hall is more than seventy years old and unable to bear confinement in the cells, that others equally as guilty in the same cases received much lighter sentences and that the ends of justice have already been served.

TRUSTFUL VISITOR LOSES HIS BAGGAGE

Clarence F. Brigdon of No. 48 Hill street, Saco, Me., is to-day lamenting the loss of his suit case and its contents, valued at about $15.

Brigdon on arriving in Boston was walking through the North station when a man volunteered to carry his luggage. He took pity on the fellow and bought him a meal and other refreshments. Near the Old State House the stranger pointed out the Ames building, and while Brigdon was gazing at it the man and his suit case disappeared. The Saco man reported his loss at Station 2.

LEGISLATORS ARE TOLD OF GROSS ABUSE

The electric chair is preferable to the brutalities practiced in some of the State institutions, declared Representative Martin Quinn at the State House to-day before the Committee on Prisons, where he and many other men and women of prominence advocated a reform in hospitals for the insane.

"PATIENTS TREATED LIKE BRUTES."

The hearing was given to a consideration of bills advocated by Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, a noted alienist of Boston. Men and women came from New York and other cities to help Dr. Briggs. Here are some of the charges that were made against the hospitals for the insane in this State:

They are twenty-five years behind those of Ireland.

They are the Commonwealth's greatest disgrace.

Patients are treated like brutes.

Patients are kept in freezing rooms with only a sheet to keep them warm.

One attendant to a drunkard.

Former inmate man now an attendant.

The "Hospital Grip."

The hearing halted abruptly when Representative George Marchant raised the question as to whether it was being conducted by the right committee. Mr. Marchant and Senator Joseph Lomasney thought the Committee on Charitable Institutions should hear the proceedings and no adjournment was taken until this matter was settled. A decision on the question was to be reached this afternoon and then it will be announced when the hearing will proceed.

The attempt was made to illustrate to the committee what is known as "the hospital grip," but Senator Lomasney objected and referred to one of the men showing the grip as a "dog."

The hearing was scheduled to take place in Room No. 423, but it soon became evident that this room would not accommodate those who wished to attend. By 10 o'clock the corridors and the doors were a long line of people standing in the corridor. When the committee, headed by Senator Gates, tried to get into the room they found that there was hardly a foot of unoccupied space. It was decided to hold the meeting in Room No. 448.

Noted People at Hearing.

Some of those who attended the hearing were William Tudor of Boston, Mrs. Henry P. Loomis and Mrs. Wooley Hopkins of New York, Mrs. Bancroft Dixon of Weston, Miss Cornelia Warren of Waltham, Mrs. Charles T. Hubbard of Taunton, the Rev. William H. Van Allen, the Rev. Edward Cummings, General Benjamin F. Bridges, Prison Commissioner Warren S. Spaulding, Dr. Herbert Howard, chairman of the State Board of Insanity, and Dr. Hiram Cupp of the same board.

Governor Foss was represented at the hearing by George M. Harlow, his assistant secretary.

Mrs. Michael F. Mc[illegible]ney of Dorchester, whose husband died in the Westboro hospital, and whose death is to be investigated, is the AMERICAN to-day to say that she was with her husband up to the time he died and that she is satisfied that he was not brutally treated as it is all hinted by relatives of the dead man.

Senator Gates Heard.

Senator Gates opened the hearing at 10:45 o'clock. He read Senate bill No. 142, accompanying the petition of Dr. Briggs. Dr. Vincent Bowditch first addressed the committee, urging that the greatest reforms be shown to Dr. Briggs.

"Dr. Briggs is doing a grand work. His motive has been misconstrued, and he has been subjected to bitter attack. Some of these attacks, I am sorry to say, have come from members of my own profession, but Dr. Briggs is right, and they are wrong. The insane will never get all reforms in a great cause have suffered. He is of the highest professional standing. He is a conscientious man and one who freely and simply to better unfortunate mankind is giving time and effort to a noble cause for humanity.

"In England, Dr. McPherson, who ranks among the highest of physicians in Great Britain, made the warmest of commendations for Dr. Briggs. I ask you, gentlemen, to listen intently and to consider carefully everything that Dr. Briggs will say."

Dr. Brigge's Argument.

Dr. Briggs said:

"I have had a new draft of the bill drawn and sent to the leading authorities in the country for criticisms and suggestions. You have seen in the newspapers articles about investigations, etc. These are not true. All the investigations, and they are never told any reporter that I desire one. Neither have I brought any charges or ever spoken of them.

"This bill is not intended to interfere with the discipline of the patients, but for the mentally alienated to be placed in suitable confinement for one of the worst things that could happen to them. I believe the best way to cure for them is by non-restraint.

"In the Danvers and Northampton hospitals for the insane no restraint has been used for ten years. There is no apparatus for restraint to be found in these hospitals. In the Northampton Hospital no injurious restraint is used. Restraint and solitary confinement are often the last threesis but break the mentality of the patient.

"All hospitals should do away with all forms of restraint and should prepare one

PROF. PECK IS ON THE STAND

Professor Harry Thurston Peck, for many years Latin professor at Columbia University and known the world over as a writer for magazines, to-day resumed the witness stand in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Dodge and a jury where his suit for libel against the Boston Post is being tried.

Professor Peck seeks $100,000 damages, claiming that an article printed in the Post on July 24 of last year libelled him so that he lost his magazine business and did great harm to his reputation.

Professor Peck and Mrs. Peck arrived at the Federal Building a short time before 10:00 o'clock. When they entered the room Professor Peck immediately resumed the witness stand, while his wife took a seat among the front row of spectators.

Frequently during his testimony Professor Peck had to be urged to speak louder. Finally after the third admonition Attorney Pugh, representing the Post, moved his table and seat close to the witness stand.

Examination Resumed.

Attorney Charles T. Francis of New York, who, with Attorney Barnes of Boston, is representing Professor Peck, resumed the direct examination of the professor as soon as court had been opened.

Q.—Doctor, tell us whether or not, if you know, your books are read extensively in New England? A.—I do; they are read here more than in any other part of the country.

Q.—How do you know this? A.—I know it by reading the reports that are kept by publishers and from the large number of letters that I have received from readers. I have received more letters from readers in New England than from readers in any other place. I also know that many of the magazines to which I contributed were read more in New England than in any other place.

Q.—Do most libraries have your books? A.—There is hardly a library that has not one or more of them.

Contract for Stories.

Q.—On or about June or July of last year did you have a contract with Streeter for contributions to Smith's magazine? A.—Yes, in the latter part of June I made an oral contract that was confirmed by letter. The contract was made with Mr. McLean. The letter of confirmation was signed by him.

Q.—What was the contract? A.—I contracted to write twelve short stories each to be on some phase of literature. They were to be very short and I was to get $50 a piece for them.

The letter confirming this contract was then offered in evidence. Attorney Pugh objected to its admission. He did not state his grounds, but after a long conference at the bench with Judge Dodge and Attorney Francis, the letter was finally admitted.

Q.—Referring to the articles printed in the Post and in regard to which you testified yesterday, I ask you when you first

HARDWARE MEN HEAR CANADIAN

The second day of the New England Hardware Dealers' convention at Mechanics building opened with a short executive session in Paul Revere Hall, at which only members of the association were present. Plans were discussed to spread trade and further develop New England as a trade centre. The feature of the meeting was the address of F. C. Larivière, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Montreal. After discussing the hardware trade in Canada Mr. Larivière said in relation to reciprocity:

"I cannot express any opinion other than to say that relations as I know them are very friendly toward American manufactures. The Chamber of Commerce of Montreal is now studying the subject, which, by the way, I consider the most important economic problem in years. I could not give their opinion before it has been reached, but I will say that already over one-half of the manufactured goods we sell in Canada are from America, and made mostly in New England."

Vice-President S. Nicol of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce spoke on the lack of reciprocity between the two countries as a merchant. He said: "The weakness in American business is the lack of thoroughness. We do not attend to the details of our business like our European brothers. There is too much general knowledge, and not enough direct and specific information on given subjects. It is a survival of the fittest."

This afternoon the main address was given by L. S. Starrett of Athol, the veteran file cutter and metal worker of tools. After the meeting prominent members of the association were called on the Mayor. The convention will close to-morrow night. A vaudeville party and dance are on the programme for that night.

Girl Who Slew Assailant, and Fiance

CAMILLA COVINO

REAL UNWRITTEN LAW ROMANCE

JOHN VILLANO

ANOTHER MILK "STRIKE" FEARED

POULTNEY, Vt., March 22.—From death to love is the happy ending of the romance of Miss Camilla Covino of this town, who on Monday was acquitted on the charge of having killed Luigi Vermillo in the first murder case in this State into which the "unwritten law" has entered.

To-day it was announced she is to be married within a few weeks to John Villano, her fiance who remained loyal to her during her imprisonment and trial.

It was Vermillo's jealousy of Villano and of the happiness of the two young people which led him, it is declared, to force his attentions on Miss Covino on the day the girl shot him while repulsing his advances.

Visits Girl in Jail.

Villano and Miss Covino had been sweethearts for some time before Miss Covino met Vermillo, but an announcement of their engagement had been made. Villano visited the girl as often as he was permitted during her imprisonment, and was a constant attendant at the trial. He was present at her dramatic acquittal, and after kissing and embracing her father she next turned to her fiance in a dramatic greeting.

No date for the wedding has been set, but it is expected to take place soon after Lent. Friends of the young couple, and especially of the bride-to-be, are planning elaborate festivities in honor of the event.

Story Impressed the Jury.

Miss Covino is handsome and handsome. Her intended husband is well known here as a steady and industrious young man. Since the outcome of the trial the girl has been the recipient of congratulations from all sides and the cottage of her father, Dominic Covino, in South Poultney, has been filled with neighbors and friends from all over this section. She is a heroine of the village, but bears her honors very modestly. It was this same modesty and the calm, direct way in which she told her story of the events that led up to the killing of Vermillo that aided greatly in favorably impressing the jury that passed on her case.

WILL INSTALL NEW BRIDGE IN 2 MINUTES

The engineers of the Boston & Albany railroad are preparing to install a new bridge at Huntington by the method that will permit them to move a mass weighing more than 1,000 tons within not more than two minutes, at the longest. It is the hope of the engineers that they can place the bridge in not more than sixty seconds. The bridge will consist of three steel spans, and all are to be moved into one place by one operation. The density of traffic over the Albany lines is such that hundreds of train movements occur on the bridges of the main line within twenty-four hours, and it is for this reason that the work of taking out the present bridge at Huntington and setting into the track the new bridge there is to be accomplished in a space of time that would seem to a layman incredible.

RECORD PRICES FOR ROCKLAND LOBSTERS

ROCKLAND, Me., March 22.—A lobster famine, which will endure ten days longer at least calculation, is responsible for the record-breaking price of fifty-five cents per pound paid for lobsters shipped from this city to New York. Smackmen who buy direct from the fishermen have been paying fifty cents each for lobsters the past few days and at Eastport seventy cents was paid for one to-day.

BELLINI PAINTING FOUND IN HOLYOKE

HOLYOKE, March 22.—What is believed to be an original painting by Bellini, the famous Italian master of the fifteenth century, is owned by Dr. Felix Cloutier of No. 231 Pine street. So sure is he that the painting is an original that Dr. Cloutier is sparing neither time nor money to prove his assertion. He has placed the matter of proving the genuineness of the picture in the hands of R. F. Weaver of the G. H. Miller Company of Springfield, and already Mr. Weaver has secured the "O. K." of the foremost art authorities of this country for the picture. To back the claim still more secure, Mr. Weaver is to take the picture to Berlin this Summer, where it will be examined by Dr. Ilnde, director of the Berlin Museum of Art. The painting, which it is believed was finished in 1488, is 6 feet 8 inches by 5 feet 8 inches, and represents the burial of Christ.

GIVE CHANGES IN ADDRESSES

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

If any of the subscribers in the AMERICAN'S $35,000 contest are going to have their address changed for any reason, the Contest Editor is interested right away. For arrangements must be made to have your present newsdealer notified and to have your Sunday AMERICAN delivered to you by a new newsdealer at your new address.

In any of the subscribers in this contest are going to have their address changed for any reason, the Contest Editor is interested right away. For arrangements must be made to have your present newsdealer notified and to have your Sunday AMERICAN delivered to you by a new newsdealer at your new address.

Take a specific case. Suppose John Blank lives on Humboldt avenue. He subscribed to the Sunday AMERICAN in February for one year, the subscription to be credited to James Dash, who is a candidate in the contest. Mr. Blank's subscription went through the regular channels. The vote credit of 1,500 votes was recorded in favor of Mr. Dash. Mr. Blank's newsdealer in the Humboldt avenue neighborhood started to deliver the Sunday AMERICAN at Blank's door every Sunday morning.

Transfer Address Important.

Suppose Blank moves to Jamaica Plain and never notifies either the newsdealer on Humboldt avenue nor the Contest Editor? What happens.

The Humboldt avenue newsdealer, finding that Blank has moved without saying anything about it, naturally notifies the Contest Editor that Blank has moved and quit taking the Sunday AMERICAN of him.

Whereupon the Contest Editor hunts through his records. He finds that Blank on Humboldt avenue subscribed in favor of James Dash. Then the Contest Editor takes Dash's vote standing and neatly cuts off 1,500 worth of votes from him.

You can't blame the Contest Editor. The subscription sent in by Blank was for one year and the vote credit to Dash was given on that understanding. If the subscription fails through Blank's negligence, Dash loses the vote credit. This is only fair.

Editor Ready to Help.

The thing for Blank, the subscriber, to do, when he plans to change his address for any reason, is to notify the Contest Department at No. 275 Devonshire street, Boston, by mail or telephone Main 7480 at least a fortnight ahead of moving day. Let Blank give his present address and the proposed new one.

It is well, too, for Blank, the subscriber, to notify his newsdealer a fortnight ahead. Then the newsdealer should notify the Contest Department. But when Blank notifies the Contest Department himself, then the newsdealer is taken.

Thus the Contest Editor is informed that John Blank, the Humboldt avenue subscriber, is going to move on May 1 to such and such address in Jamaica Plain.

The Contest Editor immediately sends out a telegram to newsdealer's order to Blank, the subscriber. Blank is to take this over order to Jamaica Plain and give it to whatever newsdealer he wishes to deliver the Sunday AMERICAN at his new home.

The Jamaica Plain newsdealer will then begin delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN to Blank at their new home for the balance of the subscription.

It's perfectly simple.

ARRIVE IN RIO TO BRING DAVIE

Deputy Superintendent of Police Watts to-day received a cable message from Inspectors Burr and Felton announcing their arrival in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where they went to bring back Robert E. Davie, the broker accused here of stealing his customers' money. The message read:

"Pleasant passage. Please advise friends."

Davie will be arraigned at once in Rio in the extradition proceedings, and the inspectors will start back at once with their prisoner, as the court action is formal and Davie is willing to return for trial. In case the young fugitive fought extradition the Brazilian government would surrender him, as Secretary of State Knox came to an agreement with that government before the inspectors sailed.

The papers in the case are in the hands of Joseph J. Siebin, United States Consul-General at Rio, who is prosecuting. Rio has been in communication with the Brazilian government since Davie was run down.

WARSHIP DELAWARE ENROUTE FOR BOSTON

VALPARAISO, Chili, March 22.—The United States battleship Delaware, which brought the body of the late Anibel Cruz, the Chilian minister at Washington, back to Chili, has sailed for Boston. Salutes were exchanged with the forts. During their stay here the officers and crew of the Delaware were entertained in an unprecedented manner. Five trains were run daily to Santiago for the benefit of the sailors.

EXPLOSION AT FIRE BLOWS OUT WINDOWS

Pedestrians narrowly escaped dying cans of paint and pieces of broken glass when the windows on the first floor of the four-story brick Sutton building bounded by Market, Merrimac and Portland streets were blown out. The explosion was the forerunner of a fire which caused a loss of about $3,000 in the hardware store conducted by John A. McCluskey.

THREE CLAIM BULL TERRIER

Dr. Albert S. Cary of No. 688 East Broadway, South Boston, says the dog is his. The employes of Timothy J. Sullivan's stable on East Fourth street, South Boston, allow that he's theirs. Patrolmen of Station 12 think that they have an equity in him.

He's a brindle bull terrier. Once he was called "Kid," The stablemen considered this too frivolous and renamed him "Sancho." The dog was at the stable to-day and when asked to make a statement gave out the following, as nearly as his language could be interpreted:

"I may be Dr. Cary's dog, but dog-gone if I like to stay there. I don't like the smell of drugs and I do like the nice warm straw in the stable.

"Then you see the police have their patrol wagon in the stable, and when some one from Boston comes over here and gets a little too much patriotism aboard, why I just naturally go out in the wagon with the cops and help get him. If my personal feelings are to be considered in this mix-up why I'll stay in the stable. What?"

Patrolman O'Connor tried to take the dog to the doctor's, but Sancho slipped his collar and sprinted back to the stable.

Moisture Causes Eczema

Constant moisture is a common cause of eczema. Infants and fleshy people are often affected where the folds of the skin come in contact. Washwomen are very apt to have severe eczema upon the hands, which is often incurable so long as the hands are frequently in water. In treating eczema, water and soap should be sparingly used, or not at all. Simply apply a small quantity of Iadum, the new skin remedy, night and morning, and the trouble will disappear. Itching stops with the first application, while the healing process is rapid. Cadum also possesses high curative powers in the treatment of redness, pimples, blotches, rash, roughness, scaly skin, chafings, acne, sores, ulcers, eruptions, hives, tetter, itch, herpes, psoriasis, ringworm, itching piles. Trial box, 10c.

SUED BY WOMAN HE MET HERE

NEW YORK, March 22.—Through an application to have an order of arrest vacated, it became known here that Mrs. M. Coleman, No. 66 Madison avenue, has made charges against Benjamin W. Lincoln, who she says formerly was her secretary and confidential man. Their friendship began in Cambridge and Boston.

She is suing to recover money obtained by the sale of mining stock which, she asserts Lincoln converted to his own use. Lincoln also is accused of breaking open her trunks in the Hotel Grenoble. Lincoln, in an affidavit, tells of silliest friendliness between Mrs. Coleman and himself. He says he took her on trips through the country, that they stopped in the same hotels and that he paid all expenses. Lincoln also asserts Mrs. Coleman owes him $3,000.

Lincoln says he met Mrs. Coleman six or seven years ago in Cambridge, Mass. She came to New York with him in 1904, he asserts. All his services at Mrs. Coleman were those of a friend, he says, and he asserts he paid upward of $5,000 for her living expenses. In the Spring of 1907 Lincoln went to Nova Scotia to investigate mining properties, and Mrs. Coleman, he asserts, urged that he take her with him on the plea that she knew influential persons there, including Governor Duncan Cameron Fraser. Two trips were made and Lincoln professes to have paid all expenses. Then he tells of a trip to Cuba, and says when he got ready to leave he found Mrs. Coleman in the railroad station prepared to go with him as far as Boston, Ariz.

"We lived at the same hotels, traveled together and dined together," the affidavit adds. "I paid all expenses. Her statement that I sold the stocks were stolen is not true."

In answering the affidavit, Mrs. Coleman denies all Lincoln's statements. She says it was she who paid the expenses of business trips to Nova Scotia, and that she also laid out money for Lincoln's personal expenses, he being destitute. Mrs. Coleman also tries to show that Lincoln served a term in prison in Boston for the alleged forgery of a check. Several statements from the prison officials and the Court in Boston are attached to her affidavit to show that a Benjamin W. Lincoln was sentenced to a term of from two and a half to four years for forgery. She tells of their meeting in Cambridge, and says Lincoln was recommended as a good business agent. He recommended the trips they took, she asserts.

She resents the inflamations made in Lincoln's affidavit as to their relations, and says they are false.

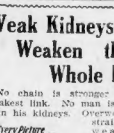
Don't neglect the slightest kidney ailment. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at once. They are especially for sick kidneys. Endorsed by Boston people.



John A. Newman, 7 School Place, Cambridge, Mass., says: "My kidneys were in bad shape and I realized that unless I found relief, the complaint would soon get the better of me. There was a dull, grinding pain in the small of my back, and it was only with difficulty that I could straighten after stooping. The kidney secretions were highly colored and irregular in passage, and I did not sleep well. I doctored faithfully, but the physicians seemed unable to help me. Through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, my health was restored and my kidneys became normal."

BROOKLINE GIRL WHOSE PARENTS WILL SHARE HER

GWENDOLYN MOSHER.

PARENTS WILL SHARE CHILD

Thirteen-year-old Gwendolyn Mosher was the centre of a bitter contest in the Suffolk Probate Court. Her father, Harry G. Mosher, Boston agent of the Manhattan Life Insurance Company, and her mother Sadie, of No. 11 Harris street, Brookline, were each fighting for the child's custody. The mother is a very pretty woman and has had the child during two years that the Moshers have been living apart. The child's grandfather, Henry Mosher, president of the Merchants National Bank of New Bedford, was in the court room for the purpose of being a witness but was not called. After a conference between the lawyers an agreement was made whereby Mr. Mosher is to have his daughter one-half of each Summer vacation and is to see her at all reasonable times. The mother is to have the legal custody of the child.

Father Only Witness.

The child's father was the only witness to testify. He declared on the witness stand that he left his wife two years ago after he came home from a trip to New York. A letter, which the wife wrote to him shortly after they separated, was then read. The last paragraph was as follows: "I sincerely hope that the next ten years will bring more happiness than the past ten and I regret that I am the individual who caused such discomfort and misery."

Mr. Mosher said that shortly before they separated his wife said to him: "I ruin your reputation. I'll get every cent I can from you. I'll do all I can to injure you. I never cared for you and I don't now. When my wife said these things to me Gwendolyn began to cry.

Says Wife Came to Office.

"After I left my wife she came to my office at No. 185 Summer street, Boston, nearly every day. She interfered with my employes and advised some of them not to work for me. She also helped herself to some of the company's money, sometimes taking as much as $20."

"When we lived in Cambridge, my life with my wife was anything but happy. I would go home and find my wife absent almost every day. Very frequently I had to get my own meals or go to a restaurant for them. On one occasion my wife stayed out all night and refused to tell me where she had been. If the child is given to me I propose to take it to the home of my father, who is president of the Merchants' National Bank in New Bedford. My parents have a great deal of affection for the child and have had a room built especially for her, which they call the Gwendolyn room and which contains everything that my daughter can wish."

WHITE ACCUSED BY CHALONER

RICHMOND, Va., March 22.—John Armstrong Chaloner, brother of "Sheriff Bob," has made an attack upon the late Stanford White in a signed statement. Chaloner declares that he gave his former wife, Princess Troubetskoy (Amelie Rives), several hundred shares of a self-threading sewing machine company, which should have brought her an income of $5,000 a year. This income would have reached her, he says, except that White, who had his Chaloner's power of attorney, "conspired against his liberty" and "throttled the company by refusing to sell the contrivances." Chaloner asserts that his properties are worth $1,250,000, and that he is willing to give his former wife the allowance she asked for.

DR. MARY WALKER WOULD BE SENATOR

ALBANY, March 22.—Dr. Mary Walker, during an argument before the Assembly Judiciary Committee on her woman's rights bill, declared herself a candidate for Senator. "I think you had better make me United States Senator," she said. "I am eligible, as I have studied the constitution."

FOUR-YEAR TERM FOR ROSENTHAL

Maurice Rosenthal, the Malden pool room dealer, was to-day sentenced to serve from four to five years in Charlestown State prison by Judge Dana in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge as the result of the conviction of Rosenthal on two out of four counts of a "white slave" nature.

Elihu Greenwood, lawyer for Rosenthal, to-day filed a motion for a new trial which was overruled. He will take the case to the Supreme Court on exceptions, and then, if he loses, appeal to Governor Foss and the Governor's council.

Rosenthal is a well-to-do real estate dealer. He is about 35 years old, and is married and has two children. He was tried on charges made by Esther Anderson, 18 years old, and Clementine Charbino, 17 years old. He was found not guilty on a jury yesterday afternoon on the charge of abducting the girls, but was found guilty on two other counts in connection with the case.

KING GEORGE LAUDS BIBLE

LONDON, March 22.—The tercentenary of the Authorized Version of the English Bible was officially commemorated yesterday by the presentation of a specially bound copy to King George by a deputation headed by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The King's reply was directed to a wider public than that of his own dominions.

He spoke of "the joint celebration by the English-speaking peoples of this glorious and memorable achievement which, coming like broad light to darkness, gave freely to the whole English speaking peoples the right and power to search for themselves for the truths and consolation of our faith. During 300 years multiply ing millions of English speaking races, spreading over more widely over the surface of the globe, have turned in their need to the grand simplicity of the Authorized Version and have drawn upon its inexhaustible springs if wisdom for their courage and peace."

TO PUSH DIRECT VOTE RESOLVE

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The Democrats of the House have completed part of their program for the coming session of Congress, and to-day are working to wind up the odds and ends. According to the program thus far decided, within a week after the extraordinary session convenes on April 4 the Democrats in the House will pass a resolution to amend the constitution to provide for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. They also probably will send over to the Senate within a short time a congressional reapportionment bill, and perhaps a bill to amend the present campaign fund publicity act so as to provide for publicity before election as well as after.

A measure for popular election of senators or one of similar purport and effect has four times passed the House of Representatives already and it will not demand an extended hearing or discussion. It will pass the House without difficulty. That will give the Senate something to talk about while the House is preparing and considering the Canadian reciprocity measure and the various "pupgun" schedule-by-schedule revision bills which the Democrats declare they are certain to pass the President's objections notwithstanding.

NOTED PHILANTHROPISTS DEMAND INSANE ASYLUM REFORMS

BIG CROWD AT STATE HOUSE HEARING ON BILLS INTRODUCED BY L. VERNON BRIGGS.

or more wards for delirious patients. As far west as California restraint is being abolished.

"In Illinois the East and West Asylums have no restraint. In St. Louis restraint has been done away with in the insane hospitals. Many insane hospitals in Scotland have done away with restraint, and in these cases it means seclusion as well as restraint. The insane hospital in Munich, Germany, never uses restraint. The hospital in St. Petersburg, Va., uses no restraint. The Ward Island Hospital in New York has nearly abolished hypnotism and restraint. In the Bellevue Hospital, in New York, restraint was abolished some years ago.

"I could go on with these instances all through the United States and abroad where restraint has been abolished. Dr. Charles W. Page, late of Taunton Insane Hospital, urged non-restraint at a conference at the State House, as long as seven years ago. He said that mechanical restraint seemed to make the nurses lose their grip and also to assume dictatorial methods toward the patients. He also said that the humane spirit has been advanced in Danvers by non-restraint, and that he had resolved that the non-restraint rule should not be broken unless to save a life, and that he had over six thousand patients under his care.

"Blot on Massachusetts."

"It is a blot on Massachusetts that hospitals all over the world have abolished restraint, and that in this State we have not yet two.

We hear of the wonderful things done for the insane in this State. The newspapers and magazines tell us all of these wonderful things, but they do not tell us of the restraints, and it is time that such things should come out.

"I am glad to say that there is less and less restraint each year. Mechanical restraint is but a small part, and chemical and therapeutic restrain cover a multitude of sins.

"Dr. John B. Chapin of the Philadelphia Hospital for the insane, says that he trains his nurses for duty, and that this does away with restraint. The nurses of trained nurses, he says, does away with mechanical devices for restraint.

"Dr. White of the hospital for the insane at Washington, D. C., believes in giving the patients something to keep them industrious. In a word he says, all that he is in sympathy with what I am doing, and that he foresees that the bill, if mechanical restraint is done away with, that other restraint will be largely adopted."

"Twenty-Five Years Behind."

An excitable middle-aged man, who refused to give his name, but who claimed to be a voter of Harwich, started to attack the bill.

"I am a man," he said, "and I want to refute the charge that our insane institutions are bad. They are excellent."

"You are wrong! You are wrong!" was shouted from different quarters of the committee room. Chairman Gates informed the man that if he desired to remonstrate against the bill he must wait until the petitioners' side had been entirely presented. The stranger left the room, declaring that he would be heard from later in the day.

Dr. Samuel McComb, one of the pastors of the Emmanuel Church, declared that Massachusetts was twenty-five years behind Ireland in its manner of caring for the insane.

"That's right, that's right," was shouted all over the room.

"In the Belfast asylum," said Dr. McComb, "all forms of restraint have been abolished. The attendants in charge of the insane are men of high moral principle and deep humanitarian spirit. Ireland is considered the leader of Europe in civilization. But Massachusetts with all its boasted progress has much to learn from Ireland.

Urges Better Attendants.

"We should have a better class of attendants. They should be better paid, and they should undergo a course of instruction. We should abolish all forms of restraint. When we do that Massachusetts will go forward in her care of the insane and reach the point that Ireland has reached."

E. H. Clement, former editor of the Transcript, declared that in the minds of the poorer class of people the idea is firmly rooted that brutalities are practiced in our institutions for the insane.

"The work of caring for our insane is handicapped by the reputation that the attendants in our insane hospitals have for brutality," he said. "Every little while there crops out stories of horrible cases in our hospitals of patients being handled to death, of cruel beatings and vicious practices by attendants upon patients. We want humanitarian treatment in our hospitals. We want better men for attendants. We want an end put to brutal practices, and an end to needless restraint."

Dr. Briggs read a letter from Archbishop O'Connell. The Archbishop expressed himself in full sympathy with the purpose of the bill and stated that Mgr. Splaine would address the committee in favor of the measure. Dr. Briggs announced that Mgr. Splaine would be present later in the day.

Plea by Dr. Van Allen.

Rev. William H. Van Allen, rector of the Church of the Disciples, pleaded for the abolition of restraint and for the placing of responsibility directly upon the superintendent of an insane hospital, instead of having that responsibility divided, as at present, among scores of attendants.

"Echoes come from out the walls of our asylums of irresponsible attendants who are cruel and brutal to the unfortunates committed to their care," he said. "If we had only one abuse a year the Commonwealth should suffer for her own sins. My one word is that you support this bill, which does away with all kinds of restraint and fixes responsibility."

Clarence W. Barron of the Boston News Bureau, informed the committee that Massachusetts was behind foreign countries and other States of the Union in the treatment of the insane. He described the methods of treatment in the large insane hospitals in Illenau, on the the edge of the Black Forest in Germany, where restraint has been abolished.

"Germany Leads World."

"The record of cures there leads the world. I was ashamed and astonished to learn over there in Germany that Massachusetts had no standing in the world in caring for the insane. Ohio leads in Germany, but Massachusetts with all the millions put into buildings for the insane, has made no progress in fifty years.

"The greatest disgrace and stigma upon Massachusetts is the method of caring for the insane. There are no barred cells in the German hospitals. They care for sanity in Germany by associations, ad not by restraint. Here in Massachusetts patients with insanity are increasing yearly at an alarming rate, and there are a decrease in the number of cures. Take away all restraint. Let us profit by modern methods, and we will have fewer cases of insanity and insanity."

Would Investigate Death.

An order was filed last night by Representative Martin L. Quinn of Swampscott, which calls for a special investigation of the deaths at the Westboro Hospital of George Lawson and Michael F. McNerney, and results from directions made to Representative Quinn by the families of both patients.

Lawson's widow, who lives at No 41 Coburn street, Lynn, in the first statement she has made since Dr. Briggs's charges were made public, declared to-day that she visited her husband at Westboro a number of times and he showed her marks on his limbs and body that he refused to tell who struck him because he feared he would be killed, and that the room where she saw him was as cold as a refrigerator.

Mrs. Lawson was accompanied to Westboro on at least one occasion by Herbert Nott of Lynn, a cousin, who confirms her statements.

"One of the doctors at the hospital was present when Mr. Lawson told me of the marks upon his body," said Mrs. Lawson. "Mr. Lawson refused to say who hit him because he feared he would be killed. A few days before my husband died, I visited him and the room was as cold as it was unbearable. I demanded that he be given a blanket. An attendant brought a blanket and George said, 'This is the first time I have been warm since I came here.' That day he was taken with chills.

"On another occasion when I was at the hospital, I saw an attendant knock down one of the patients and heard him say, 'Now will you sweep?' My husband was never fully clothed. He only wore his night clothing. He suffered terribly from the cold."

Text of Quinn Order.

Representative Quinn's order is as follows:

"Ordered that the Committee on Public Charities investigate investigate the conditions relating to the care and treatment of patients confined in the State insane hospitals, the cause of the deaths and circumstances surrounding the recent deaths of one George Lawson of Lynn, and one Michael McNerney of Boston, both of whom died recently at the Westboro State Hospital.

"The committee shall give public hearings and shall have the authority to summon witnesses, administer oaths, may employ a stenographer and expert and shall report the results of its investigations with recommendations to the General Court on or before May 15 1911."

Dr. Briggs's Bill.

What the Briggs bill proposes to prohibit is best told by the bill itself:

An act to prohibit certain forms of restraint on inmates of penal institutions and of patients in public or private hospitals or sanatoriums.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. On and after the first day of July in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, no person shall place on the muffs or mitts with patent lock buckle or wrist straps, wristlets, anklets or camesoles, leading strings or other form of apparatus or device interfering with free movement, shall be used in any penal institution or in any public or private hospital or sanatorium in this Commonwealth, unless it is applied to the inmate or patient only in the presence of the superintendent or head physician of such institution, hospital or sanatorium, or on his written order, which order shall be preserved in the files and records of the institution, hospital or sanatorium, and such application shall be made only in cases of extreme physical exhaustion, infection or the following an operation or accident which has caused exhaustion or shock. The superintendent or head physician shall cause records of all restrains to be kept in a book which shall be provided for that purpose by such superintendent or head physician. Said book shall be open for inspection at all times to the trustees or other persons having control of the management of such institution, the State Board of Insanity, the Governor and Council and members of the General Court and shall contain a complete record relative to the restrain, including the cause for restrain, the kinds used, the name of patient, the time when the restraint was placed under restraint and the time when released from restraint, with the meaning of this act, shall also include confinement in a strong room or in solitary confinement, excepting when the inmate or patient is not placed in their cells for the night, or except in cases where such confinement is ordered by the sentence of any court.

Section 2. The superintendent or head physician shall keep personally under lock and key all implements or apparatus of restraint except when in actual use.

Section 3. The provision of this act shall not apply to the prolonged baths, to the hot or cold pack, or to medication when used as a remedial measure and not as restraint.

Dr. George F. Adams, superintendent of the State Hospital at Westboro, said in regard to the statement made to the Governor by Dr. Briggs that the autopsy on the condition of the body of McNerney, who died at the hospital March 10:

"McNerney came to the hospital January 26 last. When he arrived he was run down and in poor physical health. Later he developed pneumonia and fell down over the left hip joint and back. He also had a bad case of dysentery, and developed the abscesses developed inflammation of the right ankle joint and later other joints became affected, including the knee joints and knee joints. Abscesses appeared on other parts of the body, especially over the right ankle joint.

"His condition grew worse and tropic sores developed over both heels and the back. Also for several days he carried a high temperature. Under these conditions he failed rapidly, and his death, March 10."

"A postmortem examination revealed small abscesses over the heart, lungs and kidneys and also in the muscles of the stomach."

TAFT SYMPATHY FOR BOOKER T.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Dr. Booker T. Washington to-day received a message of sympathy and confidence from President Taft.

President Taft's letter, written by himself in long hand, is as follows:

My Dear Doctor Washington—I am greatly distressed at your misfortune, and I hasten to write you of my sympathy and my hope that you will soon recover from the wounds inflicted by insane suspicion or viciousness, and of my confidence in your integrity and morality of character and in your highest usefulness to your race and to all the people of this country.

It would be a nation's loss if this unfortunate incident, in any way impaired your great power for good in the solution of one of the most difficult problems before us.

I want you to know that your friends are standing by you in every trial, and I am proud to subscribe myself as ever,

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Still Suffering From Injuries.

Dr. Washington, who is still suffering from the effects of the shooting dealt upon him by Albert Ulrich, has issued another statement. He says:

"I was not intoxicated; I had not touched a drop of liquor that night. I went to the house at No. 11½ West Sixty-third street on a legitimate mission. I had never been there before.

"I destroyed the letter in which were the directions for me to go to that address in search of Miss Olivia Shipp, author of Tuskegee Institute. I did not speak to, recognize or approach any woman from the time I left my hotel until I was attacked in the vestibule of the house.

Declares Innocence.

"I do not know what will be the effect of this affair on the work which I am doing for the emancipation of the negro.

"I have been overcome on my visits to New York by being saluted by handsomely gowned, attractive women, while I have been walking in the streets. I could no remember whether I had met them in my work, although this may have been the case, as I did not respond to their salutations.

"The charges made against me would be thrown out of court instantly by any intelligent person.

"I am a man who has traveled extensively, almost all over the world. I have entered the adventures of education. Even assuming that I were frivolously inclined, would I seek a flirtation in the street? Would I use such an expression as 'Hello, sweetheart' in addressing a woman? That is the expression which Mrs. Ulrich said I was making to her. I declare that I did not speak to, recognize or approach any woman that night."

Search for "Other Wife."

Ulrich disappeared from his home to-day. His disappearance followed publication of the charge that the woman who posed as Mrs. Ulrich and accused Dr. Washington of insulting her was not Ulrich's real wife. It is said he fled to escape publicity. Friends of Dr. Washington set out to establish this charge and made a search in Orange, N. J., for the real Mrs. Ulrich and her two children. If she is found a statutory charge will also be placed against Ulrich in addition to that of assault, for which he was held in $1000 bail.

Neighbors of Ulrich said to-day that he had gone to Irvington-on-Hudson to remain until his case came up in court. Though the injuries which Dr. Washington received Sunday night still compelled him to-day to keep his head in bandages, his condition was greatly improved, and at the Manhattan Hotel he declared that he would press the case.

Tenants in the apartments to which Ulrich lived with the woman called white he declared to see his wife and daughter expressed considerable surprise to-day when they learned of the new accusations against him. They said the charges could not be true. James I. Moore, Ulrich's attorney, said to-day that he had been informed that the real Mrs. Ulrich was in court yesterday ready to testify against her husband.

"If asked Ulrich about this," Mr. Moore said, "and he declared that it was false."

Say She Was Deserted.

According to the information which reached Dr. Washington's friends, the woman living in Orange, N. J., claims that Ulrich, who is still her legal husband, deserted her and her two children about a year ago. A Mrs. Mary Ulrich appealed to the Children's Society of Orange in February 17, asserting that her husband had deserted her about a year ago and asked aid.

It was said that her husband has been paying her $5 a week upon order of the court of domestic relations of New York for the support of herself and her two children, both girls, aged ten and two, respectively.

CAMORRA TRIAL HALTED BY RIOT

the tumult and made a rush for the door. The Camorrists battered the door of the cage, attempting to force the lock when a number of carbineers who had been attempting to bring order from the confusion detected them, and by beating at their hands with swords forced them back cursing and snarling, to the rear of the cage.

Abatemaggio, who had been cowering in his cage, took heart when he saw the carbineers beating the other prisoners with their swords and cried "Perfidne, you wrong me." Then he began to weep loudly.

Alfano, noting the betrayer sobbing, laughed.

"I hope that the holy spirit of my brother Ciro will protect us and that you, Abatemaggio, will end by telling the truth."

The disorder broke out afresh at this Abatemaggio's lawyer, leaping for his life, attempted to flee from the court. Soldiers were called and finally the room was cleared after a struggle. Then President Bianchi suspended the sitting, and the lawyers were reprimanded.

Trial is Resumed.

Before the prisoners could be removed to the monastery prison, the crown's advocate advised the court that in view of the great length of time the trial would require it should again be resumed without further delay. The president sustained this motion.

In the meantime relatives and friends of the prisoners were moaning and sobbing. With the guards heavily reinforced, the trial was again resumed. No sooner had it started than Alfano cried out in a loud voice:

"Signor President, we have faith in you for aid."

Abatemaggio's counsel entered the court at this point and asked permission to speak, but the president refused to allow this.

Father Ciro Vittozzi the priest, asked permission to speak, but before the court could answer he fell in a tnlst.

Several doctors rushed to his side and revived him. The court then took a recess for a short time and when it convened again the interrogation of Salvi was continued.

OFFICIALS APPROVE SEARCH OF WOMEN

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The public criticism following the search of the baggage and persons of Miss Joseph W. Bailey, daughter of Savannah, Ga., on board the Lusitania by customs officials at New York, brought out this official statement from the Treasury Department:

"The information disclosed the fact that there had been omitted from their declarations over $600 worth of dutiable merchandise. It has no comment to make upon the searching of the persons by the inspectors except to regret that the facts were made public."

CARNEGIE GIFTS TO BE CHARTERED

ALBANY, March 22.—Plans for a regularly chartered corporation to administer the millions to be given by Andrew Carnegie for public uses have been laid before the Legislature in a bill introduced by Senator Frawley of New York city. The bill asks for a charter for the Carnegie corporation, which is to receive and maintain a fund and apply the income to promote the advancement and diffusion of knowledge among the people of the United States by all the technical schools, institutions of higher learning, libraries, scientific research, hero funds, useful publications and such other agencies as shall from time to time be found appropriate.

The corporation will be empowered to hold real and personal property without limitation, and the trustees may expend the income in such manner as in their judgment will best promote the object.

Mr. Carnegie's recorded benefactions now total $183,255,000.

LOUD ON "PANAMA."

Congressman George A. Loud of Michigan will speak at the City Club to-morrow evening on the "Panama Canal." It is said that he has the greatest collection of pictures of the big ditch ever shown. Some of them are motion pictures. Louis K. Rourke, one of the government engineers on the canal before he came to Boston to take charge of its streets, will preside.

BEEF PACKERS MUST BE TRIED

CHICAGO, March 22.—United States Judge Carpenter, in a decision on demurrers to the indictments charging ten Chicago packers with conspiracy in connection with the formation of the alleged beef trust, to-day ruled that the "humanity faith" administered to the packers in 1905 is not in force, and the packers will have to stand trial on the present criminal indictments.

The demurrers were based upon the contention of the packers that they furnished the evidence upon which the present case was founded and that the immunity granted to them at that time still was in force.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW ON SATURDAY

The National Flower Show will open at Mechanics' Building on Saturday evening. The exhibition is conducted by some of the largest floral societies in America. All that is rare in floriculture will be shown. Thousands of dollars will be offered as prizes, besides silver cups and medals of a value approximating $15,000.

PUTS AN END TO INDIGESTION AND A SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes and relieves at once all stomach miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour, undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe theirs is a case of Nervous Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

LIMANTOUR AND DIAZ AT PEACE

MEXICO CITY, March 22.—President Diaz was interviewed at his palace to-day. He seemed in a particularly happy mood and looked remarkably well and hearty.

As a result of the interview it may be said on the highest authority there is no friction between President Diaz and Finance Minister Limantour. No propositions have been received by the government from Madero revolutionists and no attention would be paid if any such are made. The reforms Limantour has outlined so often are not likely to be granted for a long time—not while the revolution is at any rate.

The government now looks to end the revolution in about two months. Limantour's stock, which yesterday was above par, sends in here dropped a number of points and he is not so big a man as he was when he arrived. He has had two talks with Diaz. It is quite certain he did not lay any reform measures before the President at either conference, although it cannot be stated so officially.

The revolutionists held up a National Railway train from Laredo last night this side of Saltillo. They merely searched the train for federal soldiers, did not take anything and treated the passengers and crew well and courteously. Not finding any soldiers they let the train proceed and it arrived on time. This is the first time a train has been held up on this line.

About The Time It Takes For Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet To Work On The Food And Bring Relief.

TRIAL PACKAGE SENT FREE.

There is no long wait between the time you take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and the feeling of relief it will bring to an overloaded stomach. It gets busy in a jiffy and quickly sets things to rights in that tired and disordered stomach. It goes right at the work of digesting the food it has lodged there and in a few at all has things on the move—the gases cease forming, the breath is sweetened, the coating on the tongue disappears and you are no longer conscious that you even have a stomach.

That is one of the chief recommendations for Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets—that they don't take forever to accomplish the purpose for which you need them. It is just as if you put an extra stomach or two to work when your own needed help. You can't continually overload your stomach and expect it to always smile. It is going to get rebellious and sulky after awhile and refuse to go on being driven to do double work. You must rest it occasionally—not by starving and thereby weakening yourself physically—but by using a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to do the work of digesting your food.

These tablets contain all the active elements of the natural stomach juices and will alone and unaided digest food just the same as the gastric juices. And nothing could be more harmless than these tablets. They do not affect the system in any way—do not cure any ailment except as they digest food. Use them freely.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists everywhere. Price, 50 cents per box. A trial package will be sent if you will write F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Sixteen Million Now Living Doomed to Die of Pneumonia or Consumption

"The old ways is the treatment and the old conceptions of disease are passing away," said an eminent physician in a recent public address.

The new way of saving life and health is summed up in one word "Prevention"—and is the key-note of the mission of Sirolin, the great Swiss prescription for all throat and lung affections—and the latest preventive and safeguard against the two most deadly scourges of America, pneumonia and consumption.

The recent introduction of Sirolin into this country has placed this famous remedy within the reach of all. Sirolin has done a great work in Europe in reducing the death rate from pneumonia and consumption, and is recognized by the highest medical authorities as the best known specific for all forms of pulmonary disorders, in both acute and chronic stages.

It is time intelligent people discarded the "old way"—of dosing a cold or cough with dangerous opiate mixtures. Sirolin is absolutely free from any and all harmful drugs, and is a safe and sane remedy, as well as a preventive against the serious consequences of a common cold or cough.

Sirolin is now sold by leading druggists. If not readily procurable write to the Sole Agents—

MEXICAN FIGHT ON U. S. SOIL

EL PASO, Texas, March 22.—Mexican insurrectionists have invaded Texas territory six miles this side of the border, a battle has been fought at Chinos Springs, Brewster County, in which the Mexicans were routed with two dead, and General Duncan, in command of the Department of Texas, to-day rushed five troops of cavalry to the scene.

A large part of the forces will undoubtedly be sent to the actual boundary at once on the result of this raid, which demonstrates conclusively the necessity for the patrol of the frontier. The so-called rebels, who now have shown themselves to be little better than guerilla cattle robbers, crossed the Rio Grande, attacked the town of Chinos, drove citizens from the streets, looted stores and homes and drove off all the horses, cattle and goats in the place, being pursued across the border by armed Americans.

Appeal for Protection.

General Dodson at San Antonio received an urgent appeal for protection from Mayor J. D. Jackson of Alpine, ninety miles from Chinos Springs.

There are a number of quicksilver mines in Terlingua, near Chinos, and it is feared that these will be attacked. The miners have been armed and guards are patrolling the properties with instructions to fire upon marauding Mexicans upon sight.

News of the invasion of American soil caused much excitement in the camps and officers and men expressed their eagerness to go to the front.

The troops from El Paso probably will detrain at Marfa. From there they must use their horses for fifty miles to the scene of the trouble. The troops from Marathon, a short distance from Marfa, may march all the way from their barracks, as the railroad would get them but little nearer to their destination.

There is a warehouse at Chinos, in which much dynamite is stored. It is possible that the explosive was one object of the raid on American soil.

Ammunition is Seized.

A dispatch from San Antonio says that the seizure of twelve rifles and 300 rounds of ammunition by a private detective employed by the Mexican consul in San Antonio threatens complications. Wires have been occupied between here and Washington, and the Mexican consul admits that he has the munitions in his custody and declares he will not surrender them without legal process.

There appears to be a disposition among representatives of the United States to regard the incident as an unwarranted usurpation of police power. At the same time the insurrecto junta is pressing for redress, civility, while the United States District Attorney declares that no federal statutes have been violated.

TAFT AROUSED BY TEXAS INVASION AND SEIZURE CASE

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The seizure of arms and ammunition by agents of the Mexican Government at San Antonio and the invasion of Texas by Mexican insurrectos brought the foreign situation forcibly to the attention of President Taft again to-day. Reports received from government agents in Texas which are believed to have contained matters for grave reflection upon the part of the Cabinet at to-day's meeting.

Agnesis that have come from residents in Brewster County, Texas, for protection from Mexican rustlers may soon develop reason for the movement of a big body of troops to the actual boundary line. There is little doubt that a movement of soldiers would be necessitated by a raid from Mexican government, giving a full explanation of the demonstration. At the same time, the preparations which have been under way to remove the troops gradually from San Antonio are being held in abeyance.

Reports from San Antonio to-day gave details of the seizure of arms and ammunition by private detectives said to have been employed by the Mexican Consul. Thirty rifles and 5,000 rounds of ammunition were confiscated and turned over to the Mexican Consul. He admitted their detention, declaring that they were contraband, being intended for use across the border.

In view of the fact that the insurrectionists at El Paso claims it is no breach of peace nor international law to ship arms and ammunition into Mexico, the situation has taken on a complicated aspect. The Consul declared that he would not give up the arms unless compelled by law.

The federal authorities are disposed to look upon the incident in San Antonio as excessive use of police power and, in view of the fact that those making the seizure were private detectives and not legally recognized police the culpability if guilt is established, is increased.

HANDS ACROSS THE BORDER.

REBELS STOP FOOD SUPPLY

EL PASO, Tex., March 22.—News from the interior of the "war zone" to-day states that the Mexican insurrectos have surrounded many small towns and have notified the inhabitants that they will allow no provisions to reach them from the surrounding country.

The insurrectos have determined that the supply of provisions shall remain in their own hands, and it is feared that non-combatants will be subjected to still greater hardships by the blockade. Hundreds of refugees are reported to be fleeing toward the borders, many of them attempting to make the journey on foot.

Colonel Samuel Garcia Cuellar of President Diaz's military staff is still incapacitated in Casas Grandes by his wounds. Colonel Rabago is thought to be marching to Casas Grandes to relieve him, as it is known that President Diaz has sent a personal courier, with instructions that Colonel Cuellar be escorted to some point where he may receive adequate medical attention.

EXECUTIONS QUELL PARAGUAYAN REVOLT

BUENOS AYRES, March 22.—The revolution in Paraguay has been effectually put down, according to advices received from Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay, to-day. Detachments of rebel prisoners are being executed daily. Among those shot by federal soldiers were Dr. Riqueline, chief of the revolutionists. There are 100 wounded federal soldiers in the military hospital here.

$18,000 FIRE IN DORCHESTER

The storehouse of the J. P. O'Connell Company, contractors, at No. 192 Freeport street, Dorchester, containing large quantities of lime, hair and cement, was destroyed by fire early to-day at a loss of $18,000.

Two alarms were sounded for the blaze which threatened the yard of the Pope Lumber Company and several large tanks of the Standard Oil Company. The building was a two-story wooden structure and lime slaked by melting snow is thought to have caused the fire.

BOY KILLED BY CROCKER AUTO

William Farrell, nine years old, of No. 552 Harvard street, Mattapan, died early to-day at the City Hospital from injuries sustained yesterday when he was run down by a runabout automobile owned and operated by George L. Crocker, former city treasurer of Boston.

The boy was crossing Blue Hill avenue at Wanisit street, not far from his home, and stepped in front of a grocery wagon as Mr. Crocker's machine passed. The mudguard of the auto knocked him to the ground, where his head struck a rock.

Mr. Crocker picked the boy up as quickly as possible and hurried with him to a physician, later taking him to the Mattapan police station and then to the City Hospital.

Mr. Crocker said: "It was one of those awful happenings that seem unavoidable. It seemed as if the little Farrel boy dropped from nowhere right in front of my automobile.

Hurried Boy To Hospital.

"I did not see the boy on the sidewalk before he started across, nor did I see him come from behind the team, so quickly did things happen, but the first I knew the boy was walking right in front of me. I could not steer into the car tracks, because that was the way the boy was going, and I didn't have room or time to run into the grocery wagon and thus spoil fifteen lives.

"The mudguard hit the little fellow, but with no apparent force, and it must be that he fell to the ground caused his most serious injury, for the machine did not go over him.

"My first thought was of a physician, and I put the boy in the auto beside me and, inquiring for the nearest doctor, hurried there, but I went to several before I finally found one at home, a Dr. Sinclair. When he had looked the boy over he told me there was little hope, and advised me to go to the police station with him.

"This I did, and then asked me there to take the boy to the City Hospital, where I did. I hurried all I could.

Parents With Boy at Death.

"As I was driving off from Mattapan square someone called to me that the boy's mother was coming and I met her and told her that we were taking him to the hospital. She said that she would come in to the hospital on the electrics, as quick as my speed and then she went on on my way."

The parents of the boy were with him when he died.

Last week John Farrell, the oldest brother of William, was struck by an automobile where the young boy was struck yesterday, and lay ill in bed recovering even now from the accident.

"Willie" Farrel, attended the Roger Wolcott school on Norfolk street. His father is Timothy J. Farrell, a plumber and gas fitter.

WHOSE BABY HAS LLOYDS INSURED?

NEWPORT, R. I., March 22.—Mrs. John Nicholas Brown denies emphatically that she has asked Lloyds to insure her son against kidnaping. Any report to that effect is all nonsense," she said. "I never thought of such a thing. I had hoped that the newspapers had forgotten all about my son.

Guesse's Pick Baby McLean.

LONDON, March 22.—There is much speculation here regarding the identity of the American baby whom Lloyds have been asked to insure against kidnaping. Most of the guessers have picked upon Vincent Walsh McLean, the $100,000,000 son and heir of Edward and Evelyn Walsh McLean of Washington. The underwriters say they must regard the business as confidential until the risk is actually placed.

The rate quoted for the insurance is 50 guineas per cent, against total loss and 10 guineas per cent. to cover ransom up to $10,000.

One condition imposed by the insurers is that the upper part of the personator is exactly like that of the child for its safety shall be inclosed in a steel case and that whenever this vehicle and its precious occupant go out together three detectives shall form the company. It is said that the assurance will become at once effective if these terms suit the parents.

WOMEN VICTORS IN REFERENDUM VOTE

TACOMA, Washington, March 22.—The women have won in the first "referendum" election in Tacoma, sustaining the "anti-treating" ordinance by a safe majority, according to the returns to-day of yesterday's election. The women supported the measure and the liquor interests fought against it. With but four precincts to hear from the vote stands 6,408 for, 5,754 against.

ASK ABOLITION OF PUNISHMENT

While the legislative Committee on Public Charitable Institutions to-day heard petitioners for the abolition of solitary confinement and corporal punishment in juvenile reformatory schools.

Former Representative Cornelius J. Carmody of Worcester demands the abolition of corporal punishment. Former Representative Harry H. Ham of Dorchester is the petitioner for abolishing solitary confinement. Carmody and Ham were members of the special committee of the Legislature which investigated the Lyman School last year.

To-day's testimony was largely a recitation of what the Lyman School Committee discovered in its investigation. Representative William J. Sullivan of South Boston argued that if the United States Navy could do without corporal punishment in maintaining discipline, institutions of learning could well do without it.

Mrs. Christina D. Page and Mrs. Anna B. Smith-Sweet, both of whom figured prominently in the Lyman School investigation, told the committee to-day that the retention of solitary confinement and flogging as punishments for boys was a blot on the State.

WORLD NEEDS CHLOROFORM

CHICAGO, March 22.—"What the world most needs just now is chloroform or locomotor ataxia," declares the Rev. John Cavanaugh, president of the Notre Dame University, who fears modern conditions of living are bound to make the race one of nervous wrecks.

"The restless moving life we lead will drive us all to neurasthenia. Leading the pace that kills, not so much as regards vice, but the desire to be always on the move, has ruined our schools and colleges and has attacked the mental and moral fibre of the American brain.

Likes Old Things Best.

"It is often disputed upon good grounds whether there has been any real progress of the human race while the time of recorded history. In my mind the old poems are the best poems; the old philosophy the best philosophy; the old sculpture, paintings and architecture are still the models. Demosthenes and Cicero still hold their prominence. In every important phase of expression modern life has made no development.

"Within my lifetime I have seen three pandemics developed in the American people—the passion for travel from place to place, the passion for public spectacles and entertainment, and the passion for gregariousness as against home life.

"In the poorest parts of the country, in the hardest times among the people least favorably conditioned financially, I find the railroad trains and the street cars crowded with all sorts of people darting here and there on errands of pleasure. The theatres are crowded, the dance hall and the public garden are more frequented than ever, and a new and horrible form of popular entertainment has been found in the five-cent theatre.

Home Life Waning.

"Steam heat and the modern methods of living have driven out the old family hearth in the literal sense, and the passion for living in crowds or among strangers has killed off the old family hearth in the poetic and social sense as well. An evening that a young woman spends with her family alone is dull, flat and unprofitable; a night that a young man spends with his mother and father at home is the best night. In a cartoon recently published, a doting father is pictured as trying to catch a glimpse of his pet boy home from college for the Christmas holidays. The time the old man has darting in and out and around the home is amusing in the picture, but not in life. That college boy is legion.

NEGRO WOMAN DOCTOR TO STAY

Dr. Melissa Thompson, the negro woman physician whose appointment as an interne or house physician at the New England Hospital for Women and Children has caused dissatisfaction among the other physicians at the institution, is to remain at her post. Concessions have been made to the other nurses and doctors so that they do not eat their meals with Dr. Thompson or mingle with her socially, but no more will be made. If the other doctors are dissatisfied they can quit.

This is how the trouble at the New England Hospital for Women and Children stands to-day. The trustees of the hospital stand with Dr. Thompson, and she will go on with her work. This is a victory for her over the other women physicians who demanded that she be removed, threatening that they would refuse to work with her on account of her being a negro.

A Philadelphia Graduate.

Dr. Thompson is a graduate of the Philadelphia Woman's Medical College. She applied for admission to the hospital as an interne last January. The other interns, Mrs. Edna Goost, Grace Boswell, Mary Bogan, Edna Dale and Myrtle Jack, who has since resigned—declared that they would refuse to serve if Dr. Thompson were appointed.

The hospital was crowded at the time. Dr. Thompson was induced to withdraw her application. On March 14, Dr. Stella M. Taylor, superintendent of the hospital, sent out word that Dr. Thompson had been appointed by the Board of Directors and would take up her work. The women interns protested, but their protests will be ignored.

Dr. Estelle Taylor, superintendent of the hospital, has refused to discuss the trouble over Dr. Thompson's appointment. George A. Goddard, treasurer of the board of directors, said: "There has been some trouble over Dr. Thompson, but I think the whole matter will adjust itself and it will calm down."

Doctor Fears Trouble.

Another physician at the hospital said: "I am afraid there will be trouble while Dr. Thompson is here. There is a feeling that the directors have foisted her appointment upon the hospital. There is no rule that makes it necessary for the other physicians to eat their meals with Dr. Thompson or mingle with her socially, and this will bound to adjust the matter."

Dr. Thompson comes from South Carolina.

POLICE CAPTURE CRAZY ASSASSIN

NEW YORK, March 22.—The slim of a discharged employe, evidently wholly insane, to assassinate Henry M. Corwith, a retired millionaire dealer in antiques, who lives at No. 295 Riverside drive, was frustrated to-day by quick action by the police. The assassin was Alfred P. Rice, a coachman and chauffeur, who worked for Mr. Corwith about seven years ago. He was captured at One Hundred and Third street and Broadway, where he was waiting for his former employer. A loaded revolver and a long dirk were found in his pockets.

"It's a good thing for Mr. Corwith that you got me," said Price when the detectives grabbed him, "because I would have surely killed him. But I'll get him when I get out of this, and I'll get you fellows, too."

Yesterday when Corwith met Price the man threatened to kill him. Corwith notified Inspector Russell at police headquarters, and detectives were detailed to accompany him to business to-day. Price was found lying in wait for his former employer. He declared that Corwith and his daughter and a judge at Saratoga were in a conspiracy to ruin him.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

HANDS WOULD BURN LIKE FIRE

Could Lay Pin in Cracks. Four Long Years of Eczema. Only Relief in Scratching. Used One Set of Cuticura Remedies. Hands Entirely Well.

"I can truthfully say Cuticura Remedies have cured me of four long years of eczema. About four years ago I noticed some little pimples coming on my little finger, and not giving it any attention, it soon became worse and spread all over my hands. If I would have them in water for a long time, they would burn like fire and large cracks would come. I could lay a pin in them. After using all the salves I could think of, I went to three different doctors, but all did me no good. The only relief I got was scratching.

"So after hearing so much about the wonderful Cuticura Remedies, I purchased one complete set, and after using them three days my hands were much better. Now my hands are entirely well, one set being all I used." (Signed) Miss Rita Narber, R. F. D. 2, Spring Lake, Mich., Feb. 28, 1910.

No stronger evidence than this could be given of the success and economy of the Cuticura Remedies in the treatment of torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin. A single hot bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing cases and permit rest and sleep when all else fails. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are equally effective in preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. # JAPANESE OFFICIAL VIEW OF WAR TALK

Statement Prepared Especially for the American by Baron Yasuya Uchida, Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—It is nonsense and unjust to the Japanese Government to attribute such acts as are intimated in these dispatches.

If you investigate the history of Japanese immigration to the Hawaiian Islands you will find that it began about twenty-five years ago. The old royal government needed Japanese labor to work the sugar plantations and asked Japan to furnish it. There was some hesitancy at first, but finally the request was complied with, and immigration continued to the islands from my country for a number of years.

It has practically stopped now, as it has to all American possessions, and, in fact, to every foreign power.

Our government wants our people at home. We have our own internal problems to solve, we have Korea and Manchuria to attend to.

The deep thinking Americans certainly attribute no ulterior motive to the presence of Japanese in the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines or any other land under the American flag. The recent treaty has brought the two countries even closer together than before.

I and other Japanese in this country are deeply chagrined and grieved in see this war agitation.

With respect to Mexico, I can only repeat what I have said before. There is no league between that country and Japan in existence or in contemplation that could possibly be interpreted as antagonistic to America. In fact, there is no compact between the two countries that the world does not know of.

I have denied such intimations and insinuations so often recently, and so, I understand, has the Mexican Ambassador, that it is time our words should have the effect of stilling such rumors. I repeat again, that the present troubles in Mexico have absolutely no connection, directly or indirectly with Japan.

I have no comment to make on recent expert opintons of European army and naval experts with reference to Japan and America, except to say they have been made at a great distance from the powers which they vitally concern. I regret that these gentlemen have expressed such opinions particularly for publication.

There can be no serious misunderstanding between my country and the United States. Aside from trade relations, the traditional friendship between the two countries is too great and too strong for the severing of present relations.

Nearly 25 per cent. of Japan's export trade is with the United States. It would be manifestly absurd to destroy this, or even hamper it. Japan and America are friends of many years' standing and it is necessary that this friendship continue. The two governments, I think, completely understand each other.

The whole agitation is preposterous. It is nonsensical. The thinking people of America, I am sure, characterize it as such.

Japan and the United States---A Contrast

DRAWN BY A JAPANESE CARTOONIST

The above cartoon was printed in a recent issue of Tokio Puck, the leading Japanese comic weekly, with the following in English:

"ALAS! POOR JAPAN. Since the late war Japan has risen to the rank of first class power like Great Britain, America, France, Germany, Russia and Italy. Yet in this great country only 63 sen must feed 5 person a day. For all that, when it comes to the question of people's burden, Japan stands foremost in the world in the heaviness of their rate. No wonder, she can't get fat and strong.

BACHELOR TAX GETS HARD RAP

"What woman wants a husband who married her rather than pay a bachelor tax?"

This ordinance adopted by the City Council of Oconto, Wis., imposing a tax of $25 a year upon all unmarried men between the ages of twenty-one and fifty is inquiring and unjust."

These are the sentiments of Mrs. Lillian Hasbrouck of New York, concerning a recently adopted ordinance which has drawn the eyes of the world to the West.

Mrs. Hasbrouck, author and clubwoman, has gone on record without a moment's hesitation as an adversary of such a measure.

"But why would such a tax be unfair?" she was asked.

Tax Would Be Unfair.

"To tax bachelors would be, of course, in a much smaller degree, but it would be just as unfair as not permitting women to vote," replied Mrs. Hasbrouck. "Why should a man pay more than a woman pay a tax because he is unmarried? Taxation should not be used for regulating sex. That is one of the points most of the intelligent people of to-day are striving to establish.

If an ordinance of the kind adopted in Wisconsin were to be adopted here it might in justice to effect all unmarried persons not men alone.

"But such an ordinance, however, could not but be a travesty of the law, as one who passes to think could deny. To begin with, comparatively few persons remain unmarried through choice. A great and noble army of young people do not marry because of the financial aid which it is necessary for them to give their parents. Think what an insult added to injury the taxing of these young people would be. As I have said, the average healthy, bouny young man or woman wishes to marry. Leave them alone and they will eventually find their mates and live happily ever afterward."

Some Not Born for Marriage.

"On the other hand is the comparatively small class composed of men and women who were not born for marriage and to whom the idea is unpleasant. What would be gained by forcing the members of this class into wedlock? Just how happy do you think two people would be who would have preferred not to marry, and who only did so because they wished to avoid the payment of a few dollars a year?

"Only fancy the romance of knowing a man had married you rather than pay the bachelor tax. And what woman would marry such a creature anyway? You would know beforehand about how generous he would be likely to be.

"If a man was not willing to pay a few dollars a year for the love he was supposed to have for his wife he was mercenary, and who would be willing to pay a few more to help his wife live here's the way she looked at it.

"The trouble with us, anyway is that we have too many laws dealing with matters that we have no money or do not obey any of them. If the people of this country would just be sure to simplify and then enforce our marriage laws we and they might attain more dignity and sacredness.

"What we really need are laws to make marriage more difficult and to reduce the birth rate; not laws to force people into marriage who would rather not be married and so increase the population of the world by bringing into it hordes of undesirable children."

OUR BILLIONS OF INVISIBLE FRIENDS

How They Battle With Billions of Invisible Foes

The Germ Theory of Health as Well as of Disease

BY MICHAEL WILLIAMS.

PART I.

"Our men of science have been so busy finding out why we are ill that they have almost neglected that even more important subject, why we are well. For many years we have been building up, step by step, the germ theory of disease, now we are supplementing this with a happier and more valuable philosophy—the germ theory of health. It has gradually dawned upon our consciousness that every person is born into this world with billions of invisible foes, but we are only just coming to realize that we have also billions of invisible friends; that every person's body is a battleground between the invading legions of disease and the defending armies of health; that we can so equip our defending forces that the most dangerous enemy cannot prevail against them.

"At no instant in any man's life, waking or sleeping, is he free from assault by swarming myriads of tiny, but powerful, unseen enemies of life —those soldiers of death's dark regions, the germs or microbes of disease. If it were possible to wear spectacles of the magnifying power of the most powerful microscopes, we might see the very air we breathe thick with the monstrous shapes of untold billions of bacilli; and that in, or about, or upon the water we drink, the food we eat, the hands we shake, the car straps we hang to when going to work, the clothes we wear, the hair we comb, the lips we kiss, the cats and dogs we fondle, the books we read—in short, always and everywhere, the armies of death surround us, and incessantly make war upon us. And not only do they attack us from every possible exterior vantage point, but they are also ever at work trying to undermine or carry by assault the citadel of life from within. One foe of our own defences. Germs thrive and multiply in the mouth, in the nose, and especially in the intestinal organs. Thus it can be said that not only do we live in the midst of death, but that death lives in our midst. No wonder, then, that we are ever ill, but that we are ever well."

Mr. Williams goes on to say, "We can so equip our defending forces that the most dangerous enemy cannot prevail against them." The way to do this, according to the experience and testimony of thousands of people, is to take Hoods Sarsaparilla, which, in purifying and enriching the blood, gives health and strength to the white blood corpuscles, which are "our billions of invisible friends."

TOKIO PAPERS ATTACKING U. S.

LONDON, March 22.—Dispatches from Tokio to the London newspapers tell of a remarkable outburst against America in the Japanese newspapers of that city.

The Shinbun, a leading newspaper of Tokio, goes so far as to charge that America's attitude toward Japan is an exact duplicate of that of Russia before the Japanese-Russian war. This newspaper says that the American government at Washington is bending its energies to expel Japanese from the Asiatic mainland.

The Hochi, another Tokio newspaper, devotes a good deal of space to its favorite grievance—an American-Chinese alliance. It says that it looks as though this would be brought about.

Other newspapers declare that Russia and Japanese interests are involved in the proposal to lend China $50,000,000 for the development of Manchuria. It is generally believed that the outbursts of the Japanese papers in opposition to the proposed loan to China has been inspired by the Japanese government.

The Shinbun asserts that if China invests any part of the large sum of money in Manchuria that there will be conflicts between China and Japan and that America will be partially responsible for it.

The Japanese papers seek to give the impression, apparently, that America is interested in keeping Japan from sinking a Japanese India out of Manchuria.

DICKINSON SEES PEACE AHEAD

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Declaration of the utterly pacific intentions of the administration toward all the world and a tribute to the bravery and self-sacrifice of the South, are the features of a letter addressed by Secretary of War Dickinson, himself a Southerner, to an organization of Confederate veterans in Fort Worth, Tex.

Secretary Dickinson declares himself happy to know of no reason for anticipating that our country will in the near future become involved in hostilities with any other country.

"We are at peace with all the world," he says. "Our record in the movements looking toward the maintenance of peace with other nations, and the adjustment of international differences by arbitration and similar methods, rather than resort to arms, is based upon a fixed policy that will not, I believe, be departed from. For us to become involved in war there would have to be some unjustifiable wrong perpetrated upon us by another nation."

The Secretary says that even in such an event arbitration undoubtedly would be invoked, adding that "the attitude of the President in regard to the peace and peace movements is such that he will not permit, so far as he can prevent, our government to become involved in hostilities with any other government."

BRITISH BUILD WAR AIRSHIPS

LONDON, March 22.—With supremacy in aerial warfare as its ultimate aim, the British War Office is working on an invention that is expected to be the nucleus of a sky fleet. The National News Association learned to-day that Sir Hiram Maxim, the famous inventor, and Claude Grahame-White, the noted aviator, are working together to produce an armored war aeroplane. This will be built in carry bombs that can be exploded only by the machine operator and will not be set off if the machine is smashed.

MARLBORO, March 22.—As F. Company, Sixth Regiment, M. N. G., was getting ready for the weekly drill in the State Armory last night, Sergeant Ardech M. Perry, was 24 inches from the tip of the tail to the mouth, and weighed 4 pounds and 7 ounces.

FLYER WILLARD TO TEACH ARMY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—Charles Willard, the Melrose aviator, announced that he will leave San Francisco next month for the kingdom of Greece, where he has been engaged to instruct the army officers of that country in the military uses of the aeroplane.

Willard was born in Melrose in 1882. From 1901 until 1907 he designed gas engines, especially for aeronautical purposes, and went into the general gas engine specialty business in New York. Of late he started and has been a professional exhibitor on Glenn H. Curtiss's staff.

$1,000,000 GAS PLANT PLANNED

A steel plant costing about $1,000,000 is to be built in Everett, according to present plans of the Massachusetts Gas Company. The blast furnace will be erected after a new boundary line has been drawn between Everett and Chelsea, a matter now before the Legislature.

The promoters are seeking to fix the boundary line on Island End River in order that a new channel may be constructed and nineteen acres of flats and marsh land be transferred from Chelsea to Everett.

BAR HARBOR EXPRESS WRECK

Three cars of the Bar Harbor express on the Worcester, Nashua & Portland division of the Boston & Maine were derailed near Clinton by a broken truck early today. Two persons were injured.

J. J. Hennigan of Worcester, a manufacturer of lunch wagons, who was in the day coach, was severely cut about the head. He was taken to the Clinton Hospital and went to his home after being treated.

Edward Mayo of Portland, baggagemaster, was severely cut about the face and hands by being hurled about in the baggage car, which plunged over down a twenty-foot embankment. He also was treated at the Clinton Hospital.

Rear Truck Broken.

The accident occured at a point two miles from Clinton. The cause was the sudden breaking of the rear truck of the tender which forced out a rail.

The train was made up of three sealed express cars, a combination mail and smoker, a day coach and a Pullman sleeper. In the only coach there were seven passengers. In the Pullman were seventeen, including several women and three children.

The locomotive, the tender and the first two express cars remained on the track. The fireman and engineer rode down the embankment, jumped a fence at the bottom and landed on its side in a small pond. The smoker rolled, or rather slid, down the bank and into the pond. It did not turn completely over.

The day coach went partly down the bankment, a it did not turn over. The Pullman sleeper remained on the track. No person in it was injured in any way. Nobody was in the smoker.

Five Hours to Clear Road.

W. G. Mooney, division superintendent, rushed to Clinton with a wrecking train. Work was at once begun on clearing the track and transferring the mail from the express cars. One truck was cleared after five hours' work. The seventy bags of mail were transferred to another train.

The truck broke from the tender fully one-third of a mile from where the accident happened, but the train was going at such high speed that it was unable to stop until it reached the embankment. The ties for that distance were marked by the flanges of the broken truck.

At the point where the accident occurred the truck tore the spikes from one rail, forcing it to spread.

The train was making up time and was going at a speed of almost sixty miles an hour.

Selling a Collar Button

Who, save a man of much enterprise and imagination, would think of advertising a collar button? What an insignificant thing it is, yet how important to the wearer. Millions are sold and lost, yet each has to be replaced.

All of these facts occurred to a manufacturer in a New Jersey city and after considerable thought he worked out a collar button that could be advertised and advertised under his name. Go into any haberdasher's store and you will find it on sale. Go into the best-grade stores and it will be offered to you without asking for it. It's well made and well placed, but above all, it has been well advertised.

Two factors have entered into the advertising — the excellent quality of the goods and a persistent publishing of their desirability. Advertising is efficient salesmanship. It reaches the consumer, the dealer and the jobber. It lifts staple goods above the competition of other staple goods, and the simplest thing made, if it is marked so that it can be recognized and is well advertised, need not fear competition, because each sale extols the merit of the goods and each advertisement widens the possibility of a sale.

The power of newspaper advertising is being more and more admired by the most astute advertisers. In fact, many of the national advertisers that began their advertising in other mediums than newspapers are now using newspapers and find that newspapers are the most productive of all forms of advertising.

The New England market is a most peculiar one. Industrial conditions affect it materially. The bulk of the population is an industrial population. The purchasing power per capita of this population is greater than of any other section.

Tell your story to the different classes in this section.

Let the Boston American be the medium for your advertising, because its circulation of nearly 400,000 daily reaches more of New England's classes than any other paper. If you have an advertising problem, address Trade Aid Department, Boston American.

(From the San Fra ncisco Examiner.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 22.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is visiting Southern California to-day, on his way to San Francisco. Colonel Roosevelt was met at the railway station by a reception committee headed by Meyer Lissner, chairman of the Republican State committee. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who lives in San Francisco, was married about a year ago.

GLANDERS GETS BY IN PUBLIC

Ever heard of glanders? Glanders in a horse? That it is the most feared and dreaded of equine diseases? That it is contagious and infectious both, that it is one of the few diseases transferred from beasts to men? And that it is certain death to man or beast?

Here's the way a case of this awful scourge was handled yesterday in Boston.

A man led a horse down Portland street about noon. Horses are constantly passing through that and Friend street, the two valves of the heart of Boston's horse market. Ordinarily it takes a mighty good horse to attract attention—or a mighty bad one. The one this man led was of the latter kind, snubbed along with obvious pain. At last it stopped. Fortunately it did not hear what the man said or, hearing it, understand.

In Vain Seek Relief.

Nothing that ever has glanders cures for anything again. That horse had "them." Glanders is always plural in Portland street circles. If it had "them" so bad that the odor from the infected animal was unbearable. Discharges of the nose deadly sort fell spreading contagion.

The man tied the horse to a post and disappeared. A minute later one of the horse dealers nearby called up Commissioner Walker of the Cattle Bureau in the State House.

"A horse is tied down here and he's rotten with glanders," said the man telephoning. "If you don't get him out of here the whole street will be infected and there are thousands of dollars' worth of good horses tied up down here."

Commissioner Walker said that unfortunately under the law he had no power —that all such cases, human and anaial diseases, in the city of Boston were up to the Boston Board of Health. He said he would notify that body.

"Well, I don't know what I can do," said the young woman who answered Commissioner Walker. "Everybody's gone out and I have no authority, and I can't do anything." Mr. Walker asked if she knew what glanders was, how deadly, and some more questions. She did, but what could she do? Really, she was sorry.

Police headquarters was called by the head of the cattle bureau who was in dread that the infected animal might be slipped away and over the line into his own territory and carry its deadly malady there.

"What can we do?" asked the man who answered headquarters phone. "It's up to the Board of Health. Call them up."

A whole hour of time was consumed in explaining the situation. Headquarters finally said it would send a man around to seize the horse pending the arrival of the Board. Chief of the Board of Health office, there to awaken long-sleeping, content officialdom.

Wanted Chance for Money.

Half an hour later the Board of Health called up Commissioner Walker. He was told that somebody had actually been found to go and look at the dying horse, but that the man who owned it had protested that he had just bought it and that he must at least have a chance to get his money back.

"I'm stung and stung good," said the unlucky victim of the horse market gyp-ster, "and if you shoot this horse I'll never get a cent."

"And what did your man do?" asked Commissioner Walker, astounded.

"Well, it looked like a poor man and he let him take the horse over to a stable in Cambridge," replied Boston's plucky efficient health guardian. "Now it's out of our jurisdiction."

Commissioner Walker wanted to know what there was to prevent the owner of the horse from "passing" it on to any.

"Well, he looked like an honest fellow," was the solacing reply from the old court house.

The commissioner did not use any profanity. He began to do several hours' work locating the infected beast, all of which might have been avoided by intelligent action by the Board of Health. But the millennium is not yet.

Spit on the sidewalk and you will go to court on the double-quick and a certain fine awaits you. Own a horse which is spreading ten thousand times as much infection and nothing happens.

Verily do they strain at a gnat, yet camels be a cinch for Dr. Durgin and his men.

LATER—The glandered horse did get "lost."

$20,000 FIRE IN TAUNTON

TAUNTON, March 22.—Fire to-day destroyed the plant of the Cohannet Silver Works. The loss will be $20,000. The 100 employes, twenty-five of whom were women, had barely time to escape from the burning building. They had not time to find their street clothing and escaped in the dresses they wear in the shops. There was a lot of excitement, but no one was hurt in the rush to the stairways.

The cause of the fire is no known. It started in the shellac room and spread to all parts of the two-story brick structure.

Two alarms brought out the entire department, but the firemen could do nothing to stop the flames. They turned their attention to keeping the fire from spreading to other buildings on Chester street.

The head of the plant is John J. Nichols, and the company manufactured all kinds of silverware and silver products.

GIRLS PROPOSE TO COL. GREEN

NEW YORK, March 22.—An average of 200 proposals a month, are received by Colonel Edward Howland Robinson Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green, "the richest woman in America," but he is too busy to answer any of them.

They come from all parts of the world, and most of them are scented. There are missives from Constantinople, billets doux from sylvan retreats in France, love letters from Japan and Russia and Australia and countless offers from all parts of the United States and Canada.

The deluge was caused by an interview several months ago in which the former Texan was quoted as saying he felt a bit lonely and might marry if he could find the right girl, and he didn't care how poor she was.

Would Be at Waldorf.

"No, I don't answer them," said Colonel Green. "My ideal is business. I have enough to do managing my mother's estate and my own affairs. Now take this one, though," he added, selecting a scented missive inclosing a picture of a statuesque brunette in a black evening gown. The letter in part was:

Don't think me a little beggar. I feel sure, if you would have a talk with me, you would believe me to be worthy of becoming your wife. I will dine at the Waldorf on Saturday evening at 7:30. I am very much like the beloved photograph. I shall wear the same black dress and one red rose. I shall dine in the big dining room on the Fifth avenue side. After having had a peep at me I am sure you will like me, because I am a giddy girl. I am very serious, though this letter may seem giddy to you. Don't presume, be afraid to approach me if you like me. I hope we'll get to be fast friends. Lovingly, DAISY.

"Well," resumed Green after the letter had been read, "I went down to the dining room, just being curious. She was there and with the red rose. Yes, a veritable beauty she was. But she didn't see me. No, siree! Believe me, I'm a sensible man."

A Chicago girl, signing herself "Heion" and confessing to "a weakness for bachelors," wrote she hoped Colonel Green would "arrange a meeting as soon as possible," adding: "I am a young girl, twenty years old with luscious brown eyes, an abundance of chestnut brown hair, a peachy complexion, weighing 150 pounds and standing five feet five inches in height. I am an orphan and need the protection of a manly man like you, Colonel, my love."

Sugar-coated in the extreme is a long missive from a trained nurse living in Providence. Part of it runs:

Your photograph in the paper does not look like a $200,000,000 face, but just a common, everyday sort, only a little more honest than some men's.

The man I want must be a man. I want him to let me sit on his lap and at his feet when he is reading the newspapers. I want to cut his fingernails, put on his slippers and have him act toward me as he feels toward his Morris chair—part of his furniture. Write to me your opinion of women. If you don't like us roast us. Write me soon.

An actress who has "left her profession on account of nerves" addresses Green from Bournemouth, England, saying she has made herself beautiful by having die covered a cute for greasy faces.

Countess on the List.

Bois de Boulogne, Paris.

My Dearest Colonel: Pray be so extremely kind, dearest, as to excuse my letter kindly. I had the pleasure of seeing you once, and I wish so much to meet you again. I should be delighted beyond expression. I remember you with much sympathy. Pressed to accept the homage of the profound affection with which I am your fervent admirer. DIANE, COUNTESS DE VALORIES.

"A lovely little Virginian," as she terms herself, otherwise a nurse in a New York hospital, writes, "If ever you are ill you must let me come and take care of you. Will write you further details regarding the meeting we will have later."

MELLEN PLEADS FOR NEW HAMPSHIRE RATES

CONCORD, N. H., March 22.—Charles S. Mellen, president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, confers here this afternoon with the legislative committee which is investigating railroad rates in the State prior to making a report to the Legislature. It is believed now the committee will report on Thursday.

BIRTHPLACE TO HONOR GREELEY

AMHERST, N. H., March 22.—Mrs. P. M. Clendenin, daughter of Horace Greeley, is expected to be present when the memorial to her father is dedicated in this town. She is the wife of the Rev. Frank Clendenin, and lives just outside of New York City, where her father founded one of the most influential of old-time newspapers. A monument to Horace Greeley is a conspicuous landmark at the juncture of Sixth avenue and Broadway, New York.

The memorial will stand on the Horace Greeley farm in Amherst, and probably be a huge bowlder situated near the house in which the editor was born. The memorial is authorized by the New Hampshire Legislature. The bill providing for it was introduced by Edward Welch of Franklin, and was passed by both House and Senate the same day, and as promptly signed by Governor Bass. He will attend the dedication as well as Congressmen and many of the most eminent of New Hampshire citizens. It will be the most notable day ever known in this town.

Mr. Greeley was one of the founders of the Republican party, but in 1872 was the nominee of the Democratic party for President of the United States against President U. S. Grant. He died soon after his defeat. He was as well known as any American of his era.

CONSERVATIVE GOES OVER TO RECIPROCITY

OTTAWA, Ont., March 22.—The first indication of a break in the ranks of the conservative opposition on the reciprocity question occurred when R. F. Lake, from Alberta, said he was favorably disposed toward the agreement with the United States. "The agreement for reciprocity in farm products will give the Canadian farmers a wide market," said Mr. Lake. "Therefore, I am favorably disposed toward the pact."

NORWOOD CHILDREN'S SAVINGS LEAD ALL

WASHINGTON, March 22.—It is announced by the Post Office Department that the deposits made by school children in the Postal Savings Bank at Norwood, Mass., are the largest of any in the country. This was based on a comparison with forty-odd other postal savings banks in as many States.

HELD FOR CRIME 13 YEARS OLD

An honorable business career of twelve years in this city ended in the arrest of John J. Jacobs of No. 357 Columbus avenue, who is at police headquarters awaiting extradition to Kansas City, on charges of the larceny of $1,400 thirteen years ago.

Jacobs is forty-one years old and unmarried. The complainant is Charles F. Schnier of Kansas City, who alleges that on September 20, 1898, Jacobs, who was employed by Schnier as a collector, disappeared with $1,400. In the Spring of 1899 he came to Boston, having spent the Winter in the West, and opened a grocery store in the South End. His business prospered. At his lodging house he was looked upon as a highly desirable lodger, being quiet and reserved, with apparently no bad habits.

The Boston police received an indictment warrant from Missouri, and Detective Sergeants Linton and Gleavey arrested Jacobs on Columbus avenue.

As the full significance of the officers' words, when they told him of the warrant, reached him, he acted as if stunned.

DIES AFTER ONCE 'COMING TO LIFE'

George Coffin, who astonished an East Boston undertaker, about to embalm him, by suddenly coming to life some days ago, is to-day again in the hands of the same undertaker, dead without question. Three physicians have declared life extinct.

His landlady, Mrs. Helen L. Keough, of No. 13 Bennington street, refused to be convinced that life was extinct until her lodger's body had been viewed by Patrolman Splaine, Captain Brickley of Station 7, two neighboring doctors and Medical Examiner Magrath.

On the afternoon of February 22 Coffin was found in his room apparently lifeless. His fellow lodgers were convinced that he was dead and summoned Undertaker Richard C. Kirby. Just as Kirby was about to remove Coffin to his establishment, the supposed corpse stirred and soon became animated. Coffin was then taken to the City Hospital, where he was treated for pneumonia and discharged as cured on March 13.

Coffin had been addicted to the use of drugs, and when Mrs. Keough went to his room she thought he was only unconscious.

Coffin's real name, according to Mrs. Keough, is Frank Coffrin. He has a brother, William Coffrin, in Pittsburg. This brother is said to be wealthy.

SEE BIG MOTOR TRUCK FUTURE

By J. C. KERRIGON.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Boston Motor Truck Association was held at the headquarters of the Big Brass Automobile Association yesterday afternoon, President C. F. Whitney being in the chair. Plans were made for the future, which, it is believed, will result in the increased activity of the association. The success which greeted the motor truck division of the recent automobile show was commented on most favorably and considered as an indication of the great interest that is bound to be developed in motor truck transportation.

Besides President Whitney, there were present at the meeting: F. A. Campbell, H. B. Butler, Alvan T. Fuller, J. H. MacAlman, and Day Baker.

Tetzlaff and his Looler again soared among the records at Los Angeles on Sunday last, when he established two marks for the twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five and 100 miles. The record at twenty-five miles is now 18 minutes 22-5 seconds. De Palma in a Fiat made the record at Los Angeles last April. It was De Palma's fifty mile record, too, that Tetzlaff cracked. The Looler driver did 50 minutes 39 4-5 seconds, De Palma's time made last April was 37 minutes 55 53 seconds. At seventy-five miles it was a mark made by Ray Harroun in a Marmon that Tetzlaff discounted for. The new record is 54 minutes 50.20 seconds, Harroun at seventy-five miles in Los Angeles on April 17 last did 57 minutes 15.70 seconds. The 100 miles mark is 1 hour 14 minutes 29.20 seconds. Harroun had the record of 1 hour 16 minutes 21.90 seconds.

A new corporation, Wyckoff, Church & Partridge (Inc), of New York, has been organized in New Jersey to take over the W. A. Wood Automobile Manufacturing Company, builder of the new Guy Vaughan pleasure type of automobile, and with this enterprise has been combined the American license of a well-known make of English commercial car known as the Comer Truck. This new enterprise represents a reorganization of the old firm of Wyckoff, Church & Partridge, and it is proposed to develop and build the 30-horsepower type of pleasure automobile as designed by Guy Vaughan, the "try out" car of which model was completed at the Wood plant perhaps a year ago, and, after a strenuous test which has extended all over the East since that time, was refined, resulting in the new standardized model.

In deciding to go into the building of automobiles, Wyckoff, Church & Partridge (Inc.) are taking advantage of their many years of experience in the operating side of the automobile situation, realizing that when a car is made, if it proves to be below standard, the temptation to use it anyway is very great. Entering the business with the idea of building automobiles complete, the plan includes a tool room along approved lines, which is located at the immediate left of the main building upon entering from the railway, and adjoining the tool room is a separate and completely organized experimental department, wherein it is proposed to do the advanced experimental work without permitting it to interfere with the standardized operations in the plant proper.

DOCTOR MARTYR TO MENINGITIS

NEW YORK, March 22.—The body of Dr. Edward F. Ashley, who contracted cerebro spinal meningitis while treating immigrants at this port, was taken to Waterbury, Ct., for burial after funeral services in St. John's Church, Rosebank, Staten Island.

Innoculated in handling the cases, he became ill last Sunday, and, though treated with serum at the hands of Dr. Simon Flexner, its discoverer, he died of the disease which he combated at 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

Dr. Ashley was a graduate of Yale and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, N. Y. City. He had been assisting Dr. A. H. Doty, health officer of the port, for about nine months.

"His case was exceedingly malignant," said Dr. Doty, "and a previous attack of bronchitis lessened its severity and had largely to do with the fatal results. In this Dr. Flexner concurs."

Dr. Ashley and been busily engaged taking suffering immigrants from incoming vessels. Sixteen were removed to Swinburne Island, victims of meningitis six had died and in each case an autopsy was performed. While engaged in this work the young physician became infected.

RUSTLERS-COLUMBIA BATTLE CALLED OFF

By R. W. LARDNER.
American Correspondent with the Rustlers on Augusta Tour.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 22.—There left much likelihood that Tommy Steele will want his sour lots to tackle the Rustlers again to-day after the licking given them by the Boston boys yesterday. The Rustlers were charitable in that they gave the proceeds of the game to the local Y. M. C. A., but their generosity stopped there. They took no pity whatever on the Augusta team and the football score of 19 to 0 was posted up when it was all over. So the chances are that Manager Tenney will have to be content with a battle between Regulars and Yanigans to-day.

R. W. Lardner.

Perhaps it will be better practice at that, for the scrubs have been offering much sterner resistance than was put up by the Rusty crowd.

If only the New York Highlanders prove anywhere near as easy as Bloss Augustans, President Hop Russell will have a smile that will endure all through the Summer.

But the President would be willing to see his team beaten 19 to 0 by the locals if only it could down the Highlanders in the two games booked for Friday and Saturday.

Manager Tenney announced that the game scheduled for April 3 at Columbia had been called off by the latter school. He will try to book another battle for that date.

Jack Spratt, the young third baseman from the University of Virginia, is expected to-day. He took his final law examination yesterday.

The pitchers have been given permission to loosen up and display their wares, and Tenney said the rest of his catchers would be kept busy from now on. The afternoon warming up various members of the staff. There are still some sore arms in the crowd, but the aches are expected to disappear in a very few more days of this warm sunshine.

To the great delight of the outfielders, who real y see why fielding practice ever was invented, the manager passed up entirely yesterday batting and pitching and do the same thing to-day.

Goode, Miller, Collins and Clarke, who love their swings, had lots of them and, as a consequence, were hitting and throwing to remain so.

When you come right down to it, an outfield might not to require much drilling in the pursuit of fly balls. If a man is a good outfielder, he is usually a good one and it takes only two or three days every Spring to give him his customary efficiency in caring for his position.

It's different with hitting. The best hitter in the world improves with practice and the more he takes in the Spring the better he is in the early games of the regular season.

In Goode, Miller and Herzog the Rustlers have three men from opposing girls' are dread and there will be more cause for this dread if the trio are at their best when the campaign opens.

This is not saying the rest of them are weak. Tenney always has been known as a dangerous man at bat and Ingerton must be a strong sticker, for he led all in the Tri-State last year and that's a hard mark to attain in any man's league. Nor are Sweeney, Collins, Clarke and the catchers slow at the plate.

It looks as if the Rustlers would be better than the average as a batting club. This being so, it is surely the part of wisdom to give them all the rehearsal they need in this important feature.

Doc. Miller had a bad start last year. Down South with the Chicago Cubs, he didn't have a chance to get any batting practice to speak of, for reason that our Manager Chance was figuring Hofman, Schulte and Sheckard as his regulars all the time, and giving them and Clarence Beaumont the call.

After the season opened Miller was kept on the bench until the Hippie crowd was pulled off, so he really was laboring under a handicap when he joined the Boston Club. At that, he was up among the best of them when it came to hitting.

With this Spring's advantages he should be neck and neck with the leaders all season through, for Doc is a hitter with promise of developing into a champion before his days as major league pastimes are over.

The attendance yesterday was smaller than that of Saturday. Those present must have suffered from insect bites, for to say shame the way the Rustlers behaved.

The Tenneys collected seven errors, five of which were charged to Shortstop Landgraf, who didn't appear able to do anything but catch fly balls.

But Boston didn't need errors to win. Nineteen hits were enough for three Augusta pitchers. Doc Miller and Bill Sweeney had four singles apiece, Miller doubles, a triple and a single, and Bill collected a triple on behalf of Sweeney. There was nothing doubtful about the drives, either. They got through the infield nose and they made long noises. Teddy McGraw, Augusta's manager, was about the only one on his side who didn't seem to be affected by the heat. He must have been vaccinated before he came to the park, for the Tourists' disease was a fearfully contagious thing.

The Rustlers had as many stolen bases as Augusta had errors. Six rallies were rolled up in the second inning and from that round on there was no let-up to them to every chapter. There isn't any use giving horrible details. Suffice to say that every Bostonian who reached first kept on cunning until he was safe at the plate.

Wild heaves and fumbles followed each other with startling rapidity. The local outfielders couldn't get a ball and after they had dropped it, and Mr. Landgraf never did find out the exact location of first base, although he threw in its general direction five times.

SPORTS of all SORTS — BY RILEY

WILLIAM A. LARNED, THE GREATEST of all tennis players and one of the most picturesque, announces his retirement from the game at the end of the present season. Larned hopes to close his career upon the courts in a blaze of glory, and he will go to England, where he will play in the All-Comers at Wimbledon, against the greatest tennis players in Europe. Larned for many years has been a great favorite at the Longwood Courts in Brookline, where he has splendidly defended his laurels, and his coming to Boston in 1908, to represent America with Beals Wright, in the singles against Great Britain, aroused tremendous enthusiasm when he and Ewing Eaglish beat upon the courts (Ritchie and Parke) down to a gruelling defeat.

THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS ARE a strong favorite over the Browns, in the series for the championship of the Mound City, which begins on Saturday. The tribe of Bresnahan have played very fine ball in their preliminary games, while the Browns look very bad at all points, and are surely destined to be the targe: bearers in the American League parade. Manager Jones, who will direct the team, declined to put on a uniform in the series of games against the Cardinals, and will look on from the section of Nig Clarke, the old Cleveland catcher, and Jimmy Smith of the Highlanders, who seem very good this year, it looks as if the Browns were a rather sorry lot of minor leaguers.

BUCK HERZOG, WILBUR GOODE AND Sam Frock of the Boston" Rustlers have volunteered to play in the benefit game for the widow and children of the late Simon Nichols, shortstop of the Baltimore team of the Eastern League and formerly utility infielder of the Philadelphia Athletics and Cleveland Naps. The benefit game will be played at Baltimore, April 11, between the local team and an All-Baltimore team, being selected, and of which the Boston Rustlers' contingent are among the first starters. Owing to the playing of the Nichols benefit game, the date given the Orioles in Baltimore, April 11, has been cancelled, but the locals will play in the Monument City the previous day.

CAPTAIN FRED CLARKE OF THE Pittsburg Pirates was never in better shape than this year, according to the reports from the Southern training camp of the Smoky City team, and yet he is thirty-eight years old and this season will be his 17th in the National League. Fred has taken excellent care of himself and should have a good year. Hans Wagner reported to the team twenty pounds lighter than last year at this time, and is carrying over the Hot Springs diamond like a colt. It looks, however, as if the pitching staff of the Pirates was hardly strong enough to make the team a real contender for the National League pennant.

THERE NOW APPEARS TO BE LITTLE whatever of bringing Johnny Coulon and Abe Attell together, this is the match the Southern sports have been demanding ever since the former took the measure of Frankie Conley, in that great twenty round fight at New Orleans. Attell says he is powerless to respond. There appears little chance of bringing the little fellows together unless concessions are made upon both sides. This looks to be exceedingly doubtful.

HUGH KELLY DESERVED THE DEcision given him on points over Bill McKinnon, for he had a lead at the close of the twelve-round session at the Armory A. A., although the Roxbury middleweight proved a tough opponent. Kelly was very wild at times in forcing the battle, but is still a clever boxer and for several years at the game, during which time he has met the greatest boxers in the middleweight division. McKinnon is a tough nut to crack, with his constant boring in tactics, and he can right sure rough it with any of the middleweights.

AN EXPERT X-RAY EXAMINATION by surgeons discloses the fact that Russell Blackburn, the great shortstop of the Providence clubs of 1909 for whom Owner President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox paid Messrs. Crowley, Lavin and Duffy of this city $15,000 in money and player's releases, is suffering from a floating cartilage of the knee, and that his days in baseball seem ended. Blackburn received his injury during Winter playing basketball and his service upon the diamond appears to be irreparably ruined.

BIG LEAGUER TO COACH HARVARD

By E. V. B. PARKE.

For the next couple of weeks the Harvard ball tossers will get an extra amount of good coaching, for in addition to the services of the regular coach, Dr. Frank Sexton, the former Brown and Boston National twirler, Otto Deninger, the Philadelphia National third baseman has consented to make daily trips to Soldiers Field and do what he can for the plodding Harvard boys.

Otto, it will be remembered, started off with the Boston National team some years ago in the capacity of a box artist, but when he finally made a break and went with the Phillies he undertook to cover the territory around the third bag, and did so in great style until last year, when he hurt his leg and had to quit the game for awhile.

With this all around knowledge of the game he will be an invaluable man to the Harvard players in bringing them on into form in short order. In addition each man will now get more individual coaching, as two can naturally do more than one can be expected to do.

What Harvard needs, with all due respect to Coach Sexton, who is already showing that he knows what he is about with the Harvard team, is a man fresh from the game like Otto, and one who can and will instill into the men the knowledge of the game as it is played today.

The knowledge of Deninger will also be valuable, when the men get out on the diamond and get to chasing around the bases, which is now a matter of but a day or so. The Crimson players need a good deal of coaching in running bases, and this the two men can give them in plenty, to say nothing of expert advice on stick work and in fielding, and all the little fine points appertaining thereto, which the able ball tosser must know.

GARDNER STOPS JACK O'KEEFE VERY EASY

WHO'S WHO WITH THE RED SOX

No. 3—Charles Hall, Pitcher.

Ladies and Japanese, greet a feat from Texas, Charles Hall, pitcher and erstwhile Californian former. Hall was born in Kerrville, Texas. First played professional ball for Houston. In 1905 was drafted by Pittsburg and traded to St. Louis, where he remained till end of 1908. Was traded to Cincinnati in 1909 and was sent to St. Paul, coming to Boston regularly in 1910. Hall is a left-hander and a fine eater. He dotes on hash and weak.

WANDERERS WIN FAST GAME WITH OTTAWAS

NEW YORK, March 22.—Despite a splendid rally, a rally that netted them a victory in the final game of the series at the St. Nicholas rink by a score of 8 to 5, the Wanderers of Montreal had their professional championship aspirations blighted by the Ottawas. And this because the Ottawas gained a two-game to one lead in the series. That advantage yielded the Ottawa combination a 12 to 10 triumph, retained the title and won a $1,000 purse.

MOVING PICTURE MEN SNAP SOX

By MERTON E. BURKE.
American Correspondent with Red Sox on "Count-to-Coast" Tour.

LOS ANGELES, March 22.—Whether impulsive Red Sox Regulars start anything they go in to see the movies or they are off to-day for Riverside, another hustling town in the midst of the orange belt. While there they will play a little baseball—just enough for an excuse for the trip.

Merton E. Burke.

Yesterday they were at Redlands, where they ran up a long list of runs in a few minutes and then quit when some moving picture men run in a repetition of the deluge. After their victory at Sacramento yesterday Carrigan's Colts remained over for a second game.

These junkets into California's garden spots are snaps for our young athletes and so far as baseball training goes do not accomplish a whole lot, but they serve to keep the boys happy.

At Redlands Tris Speaker and Harold Janvrin won the orange eating record, it being estimated that each made away with a crate of the fruit. Apparently they will live it down.

There was some double in Hughie McBreen's mind as to the advisability of taking the stage under the threatening clouds. But the boys were keen to get into the moving pictures, which a company have been after for several days and the outfit entertained instead of trained and went to Redlands.

They had hardly arrived at the hotel of the three palm leaf fans rampant on a field of gulf, in Casa Loma, when it began to rain. It let up long enough for the boys to take a fifty mile automobile trip through the Garden City, however, and to play five innings. Then they beat it. Moving pictures later.

One of the boys spotting a sign en route asked "Dec" Gregg if he liked citrus fruits. "I ate a piece of citron once," he remarked.

Eddie Cotter has qualified as the sticker kid. He gets labels for the baggage at every hotel he hits.

Aside from that we are all well.

HUGO KELLY WINS M'KINNON CLASH AT ARMORY CLUB

Wonder if the Japanese Have Anything to Do with This — By "Bud" Fisher

KELLY DEFEATS BILL M'KINNON

RESULTS OF BOUTS AT ARMORY A. A.

Hugo Kelly, Chicago, won decision from Bill McKinnon, Roxbury, in twelve rounds.

Joe White, South Boston, won decision from Fred O'Brien, Chelsea, in eight rounds.

Tom Foley, South Boston, won decision from Yankee Evans, Brockton, in six rounds.

Ugo Michell, the Chicago middleweight, who boxes under the title of Hugo Kelly during the Winter, and becomes the custodianire of the privileges at the Windy City amusement resorts in summer, and who is incidentally a contender for the world's title, took down a decision over Bill McKinnon of Roxbury, in twelve rounds at the Armory A. A.

While there was some mild protest against the award of Referee Maffit Flaherty, still k ily outpointed the local boy, who, however, proved as tough as a charred oak, and kept the Italian Ice-pounder very busy during every one of the twelve sessions at arms.

McKinnon, shrewdly advised, kept continual's boring in upon Kelly, and as he bored well and never quit in the infighting and the roughing in the clinches he naturally proved the hardest kind of a proposition for the Chicago boxer.

Joe White and Freddie O'Brien, rival featherweights, had a very fast, rapid fire exchange for eight rounds. White had the wallop o the pair, and he dropped O'Brien with a right hook full on the jaw in the second round for the count. O'Brien came back and made the going fairly even in the third, fourth and fifth, but did not have much steam. The sixth, seventh and eighth were all White's, and he won by a long shade.

Hockey followers will have a chance to-night to see the first professional rink battle in the history of local sports. The Ottawa champions and the Wanderers of Montreal will clash in the first of a series of two games to settle the world's championship at the Boston Arena.

The games from the hockey rivals have played in Canada to decide the premier position in the sport were the most exciting events ever seen across the border line, and a repetition of the scores that were created at Ottawa and Montreal will be reported to-night when the teams get on the ice to play three periods of twenty minutes each. The feeling is so intense between the members of the two teams that it will demand the closest attention of the officials to prevent a new outbreak in the heated argument.

There is no question concerning the speed of the two teams. Ottawa has the distinction of looking the stable one, and the wonderful record of ten victories and only three defeats during the season, over the best professional teams that Canada could produce shows the real class of the Ottawa aggregation.

The Wanderers were the only team in a side hated out in the score line by Ottawa, and these games will give the Montreal team the chance to even up on their rivals for being beaten in the last games if it can be done.

The result of the game to-night will have just as much bearing on the series as the second engagement, for the total scores made by each team will decide the winner of the $2,500 purse for which the teams are battling.

"The conference at the Armory A. A between Emil Thiry of Chicago, manager of the famous lightweight Packey McFarland and Mish Murray of the Armory A. A., relative to the appearance of the famous boxer in this city at an early date as exclusively reported in the AMERICAN proved fruitless.

In behalf of the Armory A. A. Manager Murray had selected Eddie Murphy of South Boston as the best he can to meet McFarland in a two or four round bout here and in order to arrange the contest, Manager Thiry rushed from Chicago, N. Y., where McFarland had been Billy Ryan to discuss the terms of the contest.

Manager Thiry, in behalf of McFarland, was willing to concede Murphy a weight of 126 pounds at 3 o'clock, upon the afternoon of the bout, but Murphy and his advisers would only agree to take on McFarland at catch weights, and to this proposition Manager Thiry would not consent under any circumstances. After various suggestions, made by both sides, that did not seem to satisfy the situation, both forces agreed to an end.

It is hoped that McFarland may still be able to appear in Boston at an early date against some opponent to be selected fair

Science and the Coming Race

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1911, by American Journal-Examiner

WHATEVER may be your idea of science today it will be strengthened or changed materially in the next ten years.

If you think the scientific world is wasting its time in fooling experiments and vague, impractical ideas; if you think it blasphemously contradicting Genesis and the Creation of the Universe and that it has no proofs of what it says, then you will change your mind.

But if you think that science is on the road to great and wonderful discoveries which will astonish the world then you will increase your ideas, and your faith in what it will do, before another decade.

Scientific men are mere blind runners now; but they are running in the right direction, most of them; and suddenly they will receive their sight, and will know where lies the goal.

Already science has PROVEN to advance the keenest minds they have ever read and understand, the vast age of the earth. Having proven that this world has existed millions of years, it will not be difficult to believe in a time when it did not exist, and still more difficult to state a time when it will cease to exist; and finally the proof will be found proof absolute and open to all—of the continuance of LIFE in other realms as latent, if invisible, to ours.

Photographing Unseen Stars

Stars, unseen by the naked eye, are now photographed, and the photographic lens will yet reach such a state of perfection and nicety that it will photograph planes and beings not perceptible to our vision now.

Science will improve the human race by eradicating the undesirable.

Already the law is enforced in two States—Indiana and Connecticut—which affects the habitual criminal and the confirmed loafer. This law will eventually become universal, and gradually the birth rate among the mentally unbalanced, and the morally and physically unfit, will be lowered, and the weeds will cease to choke out the flowers and the strong wholesome vegetables in the Garden of Life.

Science will teach mothers and fathers the great wonders which lie in food chemistry; and then children will be fed according to the needs of their individual bodies.

Just a couple more is becoming to a blond child, all red things—nasturtiums, and violet is destroyed to the misery of any save those possessing very far dark eyes, certain foods are suited for one system, which are disastrous to others.

A Better, Stronger Race.

All these facts will be taught to parents and nurses, and scientifically demonstrated in time; and in consequence a better, stronger and more perfectly balanced race will come to rule the earth.

So, to us, then, await with respectful interest the working out of Nature's great laws by a race

All that science is discovering to-day was known by the ancient seers of earth, but they only asserted, and to put it to practical use for the benefit of all lacked of keeping it for the secret pleasure of a few.

Science will yet prove to be the Prime Minister of God.

"I'm reading," said the Wonder Girl When Jack called up; "'twas kind Of you to ask me, dearest, but I MUST improve my mind.

"I'm also studying the art Of mediæval France. One cannot ALWAYS please her HEART; Her HEAD must have a chance."

Her head indeed!—If Jack but knew!

Women of the Future to Be Bald

Causes: Hair Pulling, Rats and Puffs, Monster Hats

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

"THE crowning glory of woman," said some one many years ago, "is her hair."

Note that he said it many years ago No one could look at a woman to-day with her head covered with jute, and make the statement.

"The woman of the future," said a well known dermatologist, will be due to three things—Hair pulling, false hair and tight hats.

Now don't get indignant, and say you never pulled another woman's hair in all your life, of course, you didn't, but don't you pull your own?

If a plant is trained one day to grow toward the north and the gardener decides next day that he wants it to twine toward the south, and the next day he chooses the east, and the next day the west, we would agree that he is a crazy sort of a gardener and not fit to be trusted with plants, but that is what the women are doing with their hair.

They pull it up one day and the next day pull it down. They pull it out with hairpins and hair curlers, and scorch it with curling irons; they try most new tricks than the crazy gardener and in a very short time the top of the head which should be a luxuriant garden spot, be comes a morgue.

Having pulled their hair till so little is left that one hair has to do the work of two, they refuse to give the remaining one life a chance, and smother it with rats and pounds of jute bought at a bargain counter, and on top of these pounds of jute bought at a drygoods store they pile hats that weigh many pounds. Really, the gardener with his crazy whim of training his plants in the sun is wise, if at least he doesn't cover up the plants so that neither sun nor air can reach them.

We come into the world bald-headed, and the few of us who have fuzz on the head soon wear it off on the pillow. For the first year or two the hair has a chance, and if it grows on the head of a boy its chance is prolonged, but if it grows on the head of a girl the mother begins pulling it out as soon as it is long enough to hold a ribbon.

That is where all the trouble begins—with that ribbon! It means daughter's first adornment, and this adorning has reached such proportions that the ribbon bow on a little girl's head is larger than the girl.

Next the Little Rat

The modest little rat comes next, and rats never accumulated in the cellar more rapidly than they do in a top dresser drawer; and rats mean hairpins, and more rats.

The first false hair is bought by the dance or the lark, and the next by the pound or the yard. The head becomes the foundation of an immense stack of jute, and under it, panting for breath are a few hairs.

If this haystack style were confined to young girls, there would be the hope that they would finally outgrow it, the same as they outgrow their taste for romance and pickles, but the grandmothers are getting the habit, and the grandchild who loves to brush grandmother's hair these days will find it in the top dresser drawer.

Some years ago a woman followed the latest style of doing her hair until the bubble came, and then, driven by work and necessity, she forgot to look at the coiffures in the women's magazines; hadn't two hands left to try them if she did, and so clung to the style that was prevalent when she combed her hair the last time before shaking the tree where the babies grow.

The Door Knob Style

The door knob style followed, the door knob style of hair always indicating a woman who hasn't time to think of her personal appearance. The milliners screamed that they couldn't fasten a hat to a door knob any more than a ship could be anchored to a shell, and the woman who had time to think of herself added the transformations, the Marcel wave, the Psyche curls, the puffs and the braids, until so much was piled on her head that the milliners had to make larger hats to cover it.

The woman thinks she must have more hair to fit the hats, and the milliner believes she must make larger hats to cover the hair, and this continued contest is covering the few hairs left on a woman's head with tons of jute and straw, while dyes to match the latest styles in hair hasten the day predicted by the dermatologist.

"She will realize her folly too late," he says, "and after she has killed all her hair she will abandon all this false hair in disgust, and go around bareheaded.

In many generations to come there may be glass cases in the museums and under them this inscription:

"Implements called hair pins, worn by the women of the Twentieth Century to fasten to the hair that grew on the head in those days immense piles of jute braids and curls; not unlike a straw stack or a hair mattress."

And little baldheaded children will turn from the cases with awed faces, and the baldheaded mammas with them will explain it was before their day.

From Hair to Halo; Artist's Idea of Fate That Woman Faces

Some Simple Health Rules

HALF the ills from which women suffer are due to defective circulation restricted by tight clothing and not stirred by vigorous exercise, the blood becomes sluggish and waste accumulates, all of which means congestion and lowered vitality.

The chief aim of the woman who feels run down, especially if she suffers from cold hands or feet, is to stir her circulation. Do not confound this with stimulation. The practice of making the blood flow more quickly by a hot drink is purely temporary.

Deep breathing exercises before an open window will quickly get one in a glow, so will a brisk rub with cold water or a brisk walk. Walk rapidly, with chest up and head erect, and your blood will speedily respond.

For the young woman who is anaemic golf, tennis, canoeing, basketball, and all outdoor sports are pleasurable ways to increase the circulation and force waste tissues out of the system.

Older women, girls with weak hearts and any one with a tendency to hardened arteries or too weak for active exercise must take it in a passive form. Massage is an agent for this purpose as it promotes circulation and the building up of waste tissues without exhaustion.

One reason why overexercise is bad is that, while moderate muscular development stimulates the action of the organs that eliminate waste, too much use of the muscular tissue creates further waste, and if fatigue ensues the accumulation of these wastes is worse than not exercising.

Stout women who cannot walk much can be kept in prime condition with hard, firm flesh and good circulation by daily massage.

If this is too costly, a vigorous rubbing after the bath with a rubber flesh brush is excellent. It effectually prevents that numbness which many complain of until the day is far advanced.

Nervous headaches, which often come from defective circulation, can frequently be cured by massaging the borders of the neck and the back of the head or by using a passive vibrator lightly along the spine.

The Bill Clerk Needs Help

By KENNETT HARRIS

"THERE'S one of the peachiest pippins you ever saw living about a block from where I take my daily phosphobils and pill-pegs," ventured the bill clerk. "I'd like to get a line on her. I've got a hunch that she'd just about do. I don't know that I ever had a stronger one."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the cashier, with an air of interest. "What kind of a line do you think would be appropriate, Johnny? Judging from your appearance the last week or two, it must be a clothes line."

"That will be about all of that sort of thing, thank you," said the bill clerk. "Honest, though, there's a girl I'd like to be acquainted with. She's what you might term a hummer."

"I should think that would be an easy matter for a young gentleman of your address, not to say dress," said the cashier. "The next time that you see her lift your hat gracefully, bow, and remark that it is a pleasant day. That will break the ice and you can gradually lead the conversation to other and more tender topics."

"You're a wonder," sneered the bill clerk. "Break the ice! It would freeze a crust two inches thick. No, sir; she isn't the kind that a fellow would want to make any of those kinds of tasty kind with. She's a lady, see is. All to the proper. That's where I am no assinist it."

"May I make a suggestion?" asked the cashier. "Of course I do not want to intrude in a delicate matter.

"Go right ahead," said the bill clerk. "I couldn't stop you, anyway."

Wanted—One Mad Dog

"Then I will remark that there are occasions and circumstances where the strict rules of propriety may be relaxed, even by real ladies," began the cashier. "It is permitted to offer a lady any assistance of which she might be in need, even if you are a total stranger. For instance, if you saw a mad dog coming down the street approaching her rapidly, foam dripping from its mouth and its eyes blazing with the fierce glare of insanity, she could hardly be offended if you encircled her waist with your manly arm and drew her to a place of safety."

"That's a bright idea!" commented the bill clerk. "Do you happen to know where I could hire a good foamy mad dog?"

"Don't be too precipitate, my son," admonished the cashier. "I was merely instancing. To get to the point, there is nothing out of the way in restoring to a lady anything that she has dropped, without an introduction."

"I hang around the vicinity until she has dropped something then?" queried the clerk. "Is this the style?"

"I find you rather dull of apprehension," sighed the cashier. "Now, you go to a drygoods store and you purchase a Valenciennes or houiton trimmed handkerchief, which you reample cureessly. Then you approach her with the handkerchief extended and say, 'Excuse me, but didn't you drop this?' You smile engagingly at the same time."

"Thanks so much," said the bill clerk. "Still it won't do. She'd be wise to that and she'd probably accept the mouchoir with a look of realization of her head an' then on her way."

There Are Other Ways

"Perhaps not if you first allowed her to familiarize herself with your face," suggested the cashier, hopefully. "So that it wouldn't be so startling to her, don't you know. Perhaps you'd better not smile. If she is of a nervous temperament that smile of yours might be too much of a shock. Well, get acquainted with her brother or her father or some mutual friend and ask him to perform the ceremony of introduction. Bribe Lot servant to find out who she is and get other necessary information. A twenty-dollar gold piece pressed luminatingly into a hickey's palm will work wonders."

"Lend me the twenty and tell me what to do with it and I'll make a stagger at it," said the bill clerk. "That might turn the trick, sure enough. Of course I might rescue her from a burning building."

"Does she smile and bite her lips when she encounters your gaze of respectful admiration?" asked the cashier.

"No," answered the bill clerk, gruffly. "Say, cut it out, will you?"

"As you please," resented the cashier. "If you don't want me to help you you can just stew and for somewhat long and be hanged to you, so there now!"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Cretonne Furniture

IT is astonishing what some women can do with a few tacks, a hammer, and some lengths of cretonne! The appearance of a room may be entirely changed with a judicious handling of these three by a woman of taste. Not only the appearance of the room can be changed, but the atmosphere can be altered.

In the shops art cretonnes and chintz can be bought at a reasonable price. Chairs and sofas can be made to look like new if these materials are used to re-cover them. This re-covering is not a difficult matter.

Remove the old cover and use it for a pattern. In cutting the new one remember to have the thread run the right way and always in a straight line. If it is necessary to piece the material one should be careful to match the pattern exactly. And one should try to use wide material, as it always cuts to so much greater advantage and obviates the necessity for so many seams. It is better to have the cover and the hatred which seethed against her in the heart of the woman whom she had supplanted.

Helene Vauquier meant to expose her to-night; Celia had not a doubt of it. That was her explanation of Helene Vauquier's treachery, and believing that error, she believed yet another—that she had not reached the terrible climax of her troubles. She was only at the beginning of them.

"Helene!" cried Mme. Dauvary sharply. "What are you doing?"

One of the Greatest Mystery Stories Ever Written. By A. E. W. Mason. Copyright, 1909, 1910, by A. E. W. Mason

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Continued)

AND then Helene Vauquier raised her cup from the chair and lifted her gaze to the ground. For a moment she held her so. If Celia had felt ridiculous before she knew that she was ten times more so now. She could see herself as she hung in Helene Vauquier's arms; with her delicate frock ludicrously swathed and swaddled about her legs. But, again, of those who watched her no one smiled.

"We have had no such treats as these," Mme. Dauvary explained, half in fear, half in hope.

had no animosity toward Celia; she had really no feeling of any kind for her or against her.

Fortunately she was unaware at this time that Harry Wethermill had been paying his court to her or it would have gone worse with Mlle. Celie before the night was out.

A Pawn in the Game.

Mlle. Celie was just a pawn in a very dangerous game which she happened to be playing, and she had succeeded in engineering her pawn into the desired condition of helplessness. She was content.

"Mademoiselle," she said, with a smile, "you wish me to believe. You have now your opportunity."

Opportunity! And she was helpless! She knew very well that she could never free herself from these cords without Helene's help. She would fall, miserably and shamefully fall.

"It was madame who wished you to believe," she stammered.

And Adele Rossignol laughed suddenly—a short, loud, harsh laugh, which jarred upon the quiet of the room. It turned Celia's vague alarm into a definite terror. Some magnetic current brought her grave messages of fear. The air about her seemed to tingle with strange menaces. She looked at Adele. Did they emanate from her? And her terror answered her "Yes." She made her mistake in that.

The strong personality in the room was not Adele Rossignol, but Helene Vauquier, who held her like a child in her arms. But she was definitely aware of danger, and too late aware of it. She struggled vainly. From her head to her feet she was powerless. She cried out hysterically to her patron:

"Madame! Madame! There is something—a presence here—some one who means harm! I know it!"

And upon the old woman's face there came a look, not of alarm, but of extraordinary relief. The genuine, heartfelt cry restored her confidence in Celia.

"None one—who means harm!" she whispered, trembling with excitement.

"She Is Under Control"

"Ah, mademoiselle is already under control," said Helene, using the jargon which she had learnt from Celia's lips.

Adele Rossignol grinned.

"Yes, la petite is under control," she repeated, with a sneer; and all the science of her velvet gown was unable to hide her any longer from Celia's knowledge. Her grin had betrayed her. She was of the Jregs. But Helene Vauquier whispered:

"Keep still, mademoiselle. I shall help you."

Vauquier carried the girl into the recess and placed her upon the stool.

With a long cord Adele bound her by the arms and the waist to the pillar, and her ankles she fastened to the rung of the stool, so that they could not touch the ground.

"Thus we shall be sure that when we hear rapping it will be the spirits, and not the heels, which rap," she said. "Yes, I am contented now." And she added, with a smile, "Celie may even have her scarf," and, picking up a white scarf of tulle which Celie had brought down with her, she placed it carelessly round her shoulders.

"Wait!" Helene Vauquier whispered in Celia's ear.

To the cord about Celia's waist Adele was fastening a longer line.

"I shall keep my foot on the other end of this," she said, "when the lights are out, and I shall know then if our little one frees herself."

The three women went out of the recess. And the next moment the heavy silk curtain swung across the opening, leaving Celia in darkness.

Quickly and noiselessly the poor girl began to twist and work her hands. But she only bruised her wrists. This was to be the last of the scances. But it must succeed!

So much of Mme. Dauvary's happiness, so much of her own, hung upon its success. Let her fail to-night, it would run through Air. And she had not told Harry; it would reach his ears from others. He would never forgive her.

To face the old, difficult life of poverty and perhaps starvation again, and again alone, would be hard enough; but to face it with Harry Wethermill's contempt added to its burden—as the poor girl believed she surely would have to do—no, that would be impossible!

Not this time would she turn away from the Spirit, because it was so terrible and cold. If she had had the courage to tell him yesterday, he would have forgiven, surely he would!

The tears gathered in her eyes and rolled down her cheeks. What would become of her now? She was in pain besides. The cords about her arms and ankles tortured her. And she feared—yes, desperately she feared—the effect of the exposure upon Mme. Dauvray. She had been treated as a daughter; now she was in return to rob Mme. Dauvray of the belief which had become the passion of her life.

"Let us take our seats at the table," she heard Mme. Dauvray say. "Helene, you are by the switch of the electric light. Will you turn it off?" And upon that Helene whispered, yet so that the whisper reached to Celia and awakened hope:

"Wait! I will see what she is doing."

The curtains opened, and Helene Vauquier slipped to the girl's side.

Celia checked her tears. She smiled impishly, gratefully.

Gagging the Victim

"What shall I do?" asked Helene in a voice so low that the movement of her mouth, rather than her words, made the question clear.

Celia raised her head to answer. And then a thing incomprehensible to her happened.

As she opened her lips Helene Vauquier swiftly forced a handkerchief in between the girl's teeth, and lifting the scarf from her shoulders wound it tightly twice across her mouth, binding her lips, and made it fast under the brim of her hat behind her head.

Celia tried to scream; she could not utter a sound. She stared at Helene with incredulous, horror-stricken eyes. Helene nodded at her with a cruel grin of satisfaction, and Celia realized, though she did not understand, something of the rancour and the hatred which seethed against

Desperate Desmond

To your right, gentle reader, you see one of the famous wild men of Borneo. Desperate Desmond has just promised him a string of beads and yellow beads if he will devise some new and unearthly form of torture to inflict on Rosamond, and the wild man says he'd hate to tell what he'd be willing to do for a string of beads.

The wild men of Borneo are very fond of snakes; they make pets of the reptiles and teach them to do tricks to amuse visitors. This particular stunt promises to be very amusing to Desmond, but we scarcely think Rosamond will care for it. In fact, she doesn't like snakes any more than she likes Desperate Desmond or the wild men.

However, it doesn't make any difference whether she likes them or not. The snakes are trained to do their master's bidding, and when he tells them to twine themselves about the helpless form of any fair heroine, they do so without delay. And Desmond laughs in ghoulish glee as he sees the look of terror in her eyes.

We forgot to mention the fact that these are huge snakes. As every student of Natural History knows, the hoop snake loves nothing better than to bend himself into a circle and roll away, up hill and down dale, happy and carefree as a child at play. That is precisely what they are doing now, and they are taking Rosamond with them.

In the meantime, Claude and the sailors from the good ship "Kangaroo" have just reached the shore, and Rosamond calls right into our hero's arms. It is the work of but a moment for her to tell her story of Desmond's diabolical plot. Claude swears that he will have revenge, and the sailors help him swear.

Claude and the sailors have captured Desmond, and our hero has explained to the wild men what a despicable character that villain is. Whereupon the savages agree that the only fitting death for such a crook is to boil him alive, which they immediately prepare to do. See to-morrow's papers for full particulars.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NEEDLESS JEALOUSY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl twenty-four years old and have been keeping steady company with a young man the time ago for the past five months. In that time he has shown me all the affection possible and tells me he has never loved any other girl the way he does me.

Now, dear Miss Fairfax, I have a sister a few years younger, rather good looking, and whenever he calls and she is not around he seems to make me how she is, etc. This makes me feel a little jealous for fear he is beginning to care for her more than he does for me; but I have never said anything to him about it.

Do you thing I ought to ask him why he always inquires about her? I don't want him to know that I am jealous, but still I don't like it.

Now, in such a case, should he like her the best, do you think it would be right for her to go with him—in case he should ask her—she knowing that I dearly love him? Or do you think it would be best for me to forget about him at once? But I believe it would be almost impossible for me to do that now. V. D. P.

MY dear, I think you are giving yourself very needless pain. There is nothing at all strange in the calling of your sister. When he tells you that he loves you, why don't you acknowledge your love for him? As for her going out with him, you are borrowing trouble when you worry about that. Don't be jealous of your own sister.

DO NOT MARRY HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two years ago, when eighteen years of age, I became acquainted with a young man three years my senior and our friendship grew into love. We were keeping company for a few months when we had a disagreement and did not speak to each other for three months. We made up but after a short time we separated again.

Now, this happened about a year ago, but I still think of him often, and I try to forget him, but without any avail. I have not spoken to him for six months, even though I see him quite often.

There is another young man with whom I have been acquainted for three years. Lately he asked my father if he would be willing to have me go with him, and my father was satisfied. But I do not love this man and can never even learn to love him.

Would you think it right for me to engage myself to him? If I don't care for him?

Another thing is that he does not earn enough money at present, and there is no chance for his advancing himself for a few years; but he has quite some money laid away in the bank. I have occasion to see this young man every day, but do not speak to him.

What would you advise me to do? M. P. S.

DO not think of marrying a man whom you never can love. Possibly you will renew the friendship with the man you love. Even if you do not, it would be very wrong to marry the other man when you do not love him.

THE KINDEST THING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a girl for about a year and I had been out to picnics of amusement with her several times.

I found out I could not learn to love the girl and, not wishing to take up her time, I ceased calling on her, and I never answered her letters.

Still she keeps writing to me and it ties on my conscience. What shall I do about it? Kindly advise me. I don't want to hurt her feelings in the least. P. E. F.

THE wisest thing to do is not call on her, nor even answer her letters. If you did so, it might give her cause to feel that, perhaps, you really did care for her. It is kinder to her, in the long run, to end the affair right now.

Married Life the Second Year

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

A Dinner and a Humiliation

HELEN was in a flutter of excited preparation. It was Saturday, the day Warren had asked Will Farrel to dine with them.

With some misgiving she had told Warren of the invitation, but, he had only grunted in assent. What, if any, was to have him, all right. I met him once, and he seemed to me pretty much of a chump."

"Why, he's anything but that," asserted Helen indignantly. "And if he comes I want you to be particularly nice to him."

"All right," carelessly. "Bring him girl."

And with this assurance of his consent Helen had prepared the dinner with much care.

There can be no more delicate or interesting situation for any women than that of entertaining, after her marriage, a man who wanted to marry her.

And to the possibilities of this situation, Helen was keenly alive. She wanted to prove to Will Farrel that she had made no mistake in her marriage. She wanted him to see how happy her boy and her husband at their best.

It was almost six, now, and she was putting the last touches to the table before hurrying to dress.

Her Fears for Warren

"Here, Delia, fill this silver salt cellar. And that isn't the dish for the olives. I told you to use the one with the handle. And tained him so long."

put some more ice on the celery. I want it to be very crisp."

By half past six, she was dressed and was laying out Warren's clothes. He had promised to come home early. Surely, he wasn't going to be late to-night!

At quarter to seven he had still not come. The lump that always rose in Helen's throat, when she thought herself flagrantly neglected, or mistreated, was now lodged there. Was he going to fail her to-night? Seven o'clock brought Mr. Farrel, looking bigger and better groomed than ever, in his evening clothes. Helen led the way to the library and motioned him to a chair by the gas logs, which she and just lit.

"I am so sorry Mr. Curtis has been detained. But I'm sure he will be here any moment now."

She tried to talk gayly, so that he might not see her uneasiness about Warren.

"What a delightful apartment you have here," he commented.

"There He Is Now," She Said

"Oh, yes; we like it very much. It's very convenient, just a block from the trolley. Mr. Curtis can reach his office in twenty minutes."

"Shall I serve dinner now, ma'am, or wait for Mr. Curtis," asked Delia, appearing at the door.

"Oh, why—I guess we'll wait for a few moments. He's certain to be here very soon. I can't imagine what has de-

Another half hour passed, and Helen, knowing the dinner would be spoiled if they waited longer, ordered Delia to serve it.

They were hardly seated when the hall door opened.

"Oh, there is Mr. Curtis now," announced Helen joyously.

She thought, of course, he would go to his room and freshen up before coming to the table. But to her surprise he bolted right in upon them.

One glance at his flushed face and overbrilliant eyes and Helen knew he had been drinking!

"Ah, that's right—that's right. Glad you didn't wait," with a foolish smile that always came when he was half intoxicated. "Warren," Helen's voice was curiously strained, "I want you to meet Mr. Farrel again.

I believe you did meet several years ago.

"Why, of course, of course! How are you, Farrel, old man? Mighty glad to have you with us."

Helen half rose from the place at the head of the table which she had taken that she might serve in his absence.

"O, no—no, my dear, keep your seat. The head of the table for the Madame every time, eh, Farrel?"

Helen felt herself grow sick—cold, tremblingly sick. If only he wouldn't talk, they might get through the dinner somehow. But, with him, drink always brought first a foolish, maudlin volubility, followed later by an irritable sullenness. And now he was just in the height of the silly, garrulous stage.

Here Delia brought in the roast and placed it before him.

"Oh, I will carve to-night, Delia?" said Helen hastily. "Mr. Curtis is tired."

"Not a bit tired," said Warren cheerfully. "Never better in my life," as he took up the carving knife and fork. He speared the roast with no uncertain hand and made an attempt at carving. The first effort splashed some brown gravy on the cloth. The next assault brought the knife down upon the edge of the plate.

Helen Clenched Her Hands

Helen clenched her hands under the table and waited. Then a sudden movement of his elbow would have sent a glass crashing to the floor had not Farrel caught it with quick dexterity.

"Warren, let Delia take the roast into the kitchen and carve it," pleaded Helen.

"What for?" with the obstinacy of alcohol. "I always carve, don't I? What's the matter with my carving to-night?"

Here Farrel, to relieve the strain and Helen's embarrassment, told a story about a southern darkey carving a stolen chicken, at which Helen smiled mechanically although she heard not a word. Her eyes were fixed in anguished anxiety on the roast, expecting every moment to see it landed on the table cloth or on the floor.

However, Warren managed to saw off a few pieces of the fowl. Helen protested she "didn't care for any," so there would be no need of carving any more.

Just how they got through that dinner Helen hardly knew. Warren grew more and more garrulous and maudlin, but Farrel, with rare tact and delicacy, tried to direct the conversation with stories and incidents of the West.

After dinner, coffee was served in the library, and Warren seemed constantly on the verge of overturning or dropping his cup.

Farrel left very early on plea of some business letters to be written before morning, but Helen knew it was to release her as soon as possible from this painful situation.

For a moment they were alone in the hall. She held out her hand, in good-bye, and in silent gratitude for his help and understanding through the humiliation of that evening.

"I'm going back to Denver, Monday, but if there's anything I can do for you—you have only to let me know."

He smiled a little sadly. "I'm afraid that sounds rather trite and melodramatic—and yet I think you know I mean it."

He held raised her hand to his lips, then dropped it with a "Good-bye, little woman; good luck," and he was gone.

For a Long Time She Stood

For a long time Helen stood by the window, her burning cheek against the cool glass—gazing out unseeing into the night.

Warren had thrown himself on the couch and was sleeping heavily. But still she stood there, her hot face still pressed against the window.

"If there is anything I can ever do for you—you have only to let me know."

What had he meant by that?

The Finicky Man

OH, I never did years or care any old dern

For a maiden with ruby-red eyes

And an emerald nose (I am queer, I suppose);

It affects me in similar wise

I can't see any charm in a purple-hued arm

Or in hair that's a salmony pink.

And the people whose tastes go to corkscrewing waists

They are very misguided, I think

I maintain if you put a quite circular foot

On a square or triangular leg

It's a blemish, although it's not likely to show,

And I don't like a form like a keg.

If a girl hits a gait like a clubman out late

And she laughs like a Navajo whoop,

Then she isn't the sort I'd be willing to court

On the shady side of the stoop.

You'll consider, mayhap, I'm a finicky chap,

And no doubt you'll be perfectly right;

But there's one thing I'll say in defence,

If I may—

That there's no other kind that I'll slight.

I'll take blonde or brunette—anyone I can get—

With black eyes, or the heavenly blue,

If she'll only agree to smile kindly on me,

With these trifling exceptions, she'll do.

The House With No Address

A Story of Love and Tragedy, by E. Nesbit. Copyright by Doubleday, Page and Company

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments

Edmund Templar, youthful, rich and just back from the Boer War, has discovered in Sylvia, a Greek classic dancer, one whom all London is raving, the girl whom he had been seeking high and low since his return to England. She was a mere child when she saw her dancing in the forest near his aunt's home. He is amazed at the wonderful change time has wrought in her.

London is mystified concerning this marvelous dancer. The keenest journalists have been unable to ascertain where she lives or who she is. A crippled youth, who puts Pan in the dance scene and plays for her, and a middle-aged aunt are her only attendants. They leave the theater nightly in a motor car, and apparently are swallowed up after driving about the streets of London. Only they and Uncle Moses Mosenthal know the secret of the House with No Address, where Sylvia lives.

Templar decides to follow the car some night in a taxi and again meet the girl

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

MARKET OPENS FIRM BUT DULL

NEW YORK, March 22. The stock market opened firm to-day with a general fractional upturn in the initial quotations. Canadian Pacific was a leader opening with an advance of ¾. News from Washington relative to the American situation resulted in giving a firm tone to National Railroad of Mexico second preferred, which opened up ½. Other features in the first prices were Union Pacific ¼, Reading ¼, Consolidated Gas ¾, Missouri Pacific ¾, United States Steel ¼, Atchison ¼.

In the absence of trading of any consequence during the first hour the market would continue in a lethargic state until the customary quotations were handed down in the United States Supreme Court. Missouri Pacific was unable to improve on its initial advance of ¾. The developments at the Kentucky-Kentucky were regarded as satisfactory and there was no explanation of the selling orders in Missouri Pacific.

The cash market opened moderately active and firm.

American railways experienced a fractional upturn in the London market although the tone was narrow.

The local curb market showed fairly good activity after the opening this morning, but there was nothing startling in the operations of the stocks. Interborough-Metropolitan continued fairly active around 16 and 17 cents. Chino rose ¾ to 22½ on some strong and heavy trading. Bay State Gas was firm at 5¾, declining to 5¾, but later recovering. United Verde Ex. was strong selling 3-16 of a point, while Ravel declined 2 cents on small sales. Calaveras advanced ⅜ to 2⅞.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Two weeks of quiet are ahead of the market, but this period is hailed with delight by those traders who are bullishly inclined and at the same time are timid when the probability of a decision by the United States Supreme Court is near.

The last report to the Comptroller of the Currency shows that in two months the banks of the country have added many millions of dollars' worth of stocks for their already large holdings, the meaning of which cannot be otherwise than that these institutions believe prices are bound to go much higher.

Many brokers are inclined to expatiate on the advantages that might accrue to the large interests if they allowed the market to drop about ten points. Whether the large interests will accept the suggestion remains to be seen. Also it is not clear if the market would drop down even should the large interests be inclined to "allow" it to do so.

Isaac Guggenheim believes there will be no era of great prosperity for this country when the trust question is settled, but says "Everything is favorable," he said, "and capital is ready to embark upon large enterprises whenever a conservative policy is determined upon."

A big strike is reported on the North Thompson property in the Nicola district, adjoining the Bellinger on the south and the Vipond on the west. J. Thomas Reinhardt recently purchased the North Thompson. The rich No. 2 Vipond vein has been cut in the north end of the property, and has been stripped for over 200 feet. Twelve gold shoots have been found in the ground, and the safety of its dividend. It is being built for 15 cents a share.

Some operators are of the opinion that large interests would not allow the market to move much more than it has in recent days if they would supply stocks if prices showed an inclination to move upward. Such reader support if a raid were attempted.

This proving to be of great extent; fully thirty-six square miles are under active development. On the North Thompson claim, adjoining the Bonanza, on the west, a continuation of the famous Vipond vein has been stripped for over two hundred feet.

All Nations Save Our Own See Danger from Japan

Some day—and no man knows how soon—the men who cry "Jingo!" at the statesmanship that would prepare our country for defence are going to call upon the mountains to fall and cover them.

A man may not feel that he is going to die; nevertheless, amid the chances of death the prudent man deems it his duty to his family to take out a policy of insurance.

Many good men in this country may not believe that we are on the verge of a war with Japan, but amid the many and convincing omens of war no man will deny that it is wise statesmanship to prepare for war in case it should come.

Every nation on earth except our own believes that Japan is preparing—and has already prepared—for a war with the United States. Every war strategist in Germany, in France, in England and in Russia who has written anything along this line has written down the prophecy of early war between the United States and Japan. The Paris Temps, a high authority on foreign affairs, declares that Japan has entered into a secret treaty with a Spanish-American republic, inconsistent with the terms of that republic's treaty with the United States, and that South American republic is building naval Dreadnoughts which she cannot need for herself.

The Cologne Gazette of the same date refers to Japan's "mighty army and America's knowledge of her own weakness and AMERICA'S BLINDNESS TO THE COMING STRUGGLE."

Count Ernest Reventlow, Germany's most noted strategical expert and writer on military subjects, has published a prepared essay, giving the reasons and conditions which MAKE WAR BETWEEN JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES INEVITABLE.

The great American financiers, like Jacob Schiff, who have travelled in the Orient, come back with the prophecy of an early war with Japan. And every strategist who predicts war, and every commentator who elaborates the prediction, differing as they may upon other things, are a solemn unit of opinion as to Japan's magnificent preparedness and the lamentable unpreparedness of the United States for the possible coming war.

Congressman Hobson, naval expert, proven hero and profound student, declared upon the floor of Congress that Japan has already financed the coming war in advance, and has the money already in her treasury for the work.

Ex-President Roosevelt declared that the Japanese soldier is without a superior among the nations. The Pacific coast is filled with them. They have maps of every square acre on California soil.

There has never been a logical or sincere attempt to answer what the AMERICAN and the watchmen upon our towers have tried to do to arouse our country to prepare in peace for the war that may always possibly come. There is no answer. The facts are there. The argument is clear and convincing of the danger that is always possible and always imminent.

It is not so much a question of "cockeyness" nor any mere pride of sentiment that will move Japan to war. IT IS A MATTER OF VITAL BUSINESS. It is simply COMMERCIAL SELF-PROTECTION, which she has clearly foreseen, and which she now clearly foresees, and which she has, with wonderful forecast, PREPARED HERSELF TO MEET.

Leading Japanese statesmen now believe and say that JAPAN as a great world Power CANNOT CONTINUE TO EXIST UNTIL SHE POSSESSES NAVAL SUPREMACY IN THE PACIFIC. It is a matter of commercial life and death with her. Japan CANNOT HAVE that supremacy in the Pacific without FIGHTING THE UNITED STATES. Therefore, JAPAN WILL FIGHT.

It is the pocket nerve, the commercial nerve, the breadline, markets, room, prosperity, life—these are the reasons which are forever tempting Japan to fight.

Japan knows, too, that she is BETTER ABLE TO FIGHT NOW than she has ever been, and perhaps better than SHE EVER WILL BE. She knows that the United States WILL NEVER BE SO ILL PREPARED to fight as NOW. Japan is at the zenith. America is climbing up from apathy. Japan may wane. Its finances may decay with the enormous drain upon its armies. The United States cannot do less than increase. Therefore Japan knows that the time is now.

Japan knows that when the Panama Canal is completed and fortified the great navy of the United States will be doubled in value of defence or of offence. It will be easily accessible to either coast. And therefore Japan knows that she must fight, if at all, before 1915, when the canal is to be finished.

Three years will make the United States greater and more powerful. Three years may witness the financial stress of Japan. Therefore, Japan knows that it is time to fight.

And when Japan comes to fight, her way is already defined and the pathway of her armies of aggression is made plain.

The Japanese plans for conquest provide for the seizure of the Philippines, the Hawaiian Islands, the American Samoan Islands and Guam. Winning these, Japan would win a permanent and unalterable advantage for herself. The most powerful American fleet would be helpless scattered over such an immense area of operation as the Pacific Ocean without ocean bases. So that the capture of these bases by Japan would render that country the undisputed mistress of the Pacific Ocean.

Does any sensible man suppose that Japan does not know this now and that she has not always known it? Is there any sensible man in Europe or America who DOES NOT KNOW that Japan, under PRESENT CONDITIONS, COULD SEIZE AND FORTIFY THESE UNFORTIFIED and comparatively unprotected islands without difficulty?

Take it in every way in which reasonable men can face a tremendous problem. Every commercial, strategic, self-protecting reason which could move an ambitious and struggling nation is behind Japan, pushing her to war.

And each one of these STRATEGIC, SELF-PROTECTING AND COMMERCIAL REASONS EVEN MORE POWERFULLY PLEADS WITH AMERICAN STATESMANSHIP TO PREPARE THIS COUNTRY FOR WAR.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, was speaking in the House of Commons. He was yet in the full glow and warmth of his recent cordial response to the overtures of the United States for arbitration and perpetual peace between England and America. An effort was made in the House to ascertain from him the views of England's ally, Japan, upon this question of peace. Immediately and significantly the British Foreign Secretary TURNED SILENT and DECLINED to answer.

He admitted that THE TOKIO GOVERNMENT HAD BEEN INFORMED OF ENGLAND'S VIEWS, but pointedly refused TO LAY JAPAN'S ANSWER ON THE TABLE! WHY?

Two weeks before the Russian fight diplomatic ears were dinned with the protest of peaceful intentions, and yet, IN ADVANCE OF A DECLARATION OF WAR, Japan attacked Port Arthur, and the Russian cruisers Variag and Koriets were destroyed at Chemulpo.

On the conclusion of peace Japan declared to the nations that Corea would be respected and not annexed. Corea is now a part of Japan, AND EVEN ITS NAME HAS PERISHED FROM THE EARTH.

EVERY FACT in the long list of facts, EVERY ARGUMENT based upon reason—EVERY SUGGESTION of PRUDENCE and STRATEGY and of STATESMANSHIP points the American President and the American Congress to the SUPREME PRESENT IMMEDIATE DUTY OF PREPARING THE UNITED STATES—ON LAND AND ON SEA—TO DEFEND ITS INTERESTS, TO PROTECT ITS PROPERTY AND ITS PEOPLE, and to repel its enemies everywhere.

The Case of the Christian Science Healer

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE question of the People of New York versus Willis Vernon Cole, defendant, Christian Science healer, is still before the courts.

This is not the place to enter into a discussion of the merits of Christian Science.

The case to be judicially decided is, however, of interest to a good many people, and involves points of law, medicine, theology and psychology that will afford ample opportunity for the display of wisdom and skill on the part of opposing counsel.

After a hearing before City Magistrate Freschi a warrant was ordered to be issued and the defendant held for trial in Special Sessions for practicing medicine without a license. Subsequently, upon motion by Jerome, the case was transferred by Judge Foster from Special Sessions to General Sessions, His Honor, in so ordering, saying that he considered that the verdict of twelve jurors would be more of an echo of the opinion of the people than the verdict of three judges in Special Sessions.

Before any action can be taken by the court, the Grand Jury must inquire into and file an indictment therein. It is at this point that the case hangs at the date of this writing.

How the Element of Religion Complicates It

If one has decided religious opinions, all other considerations will, in all likelihood, be resanded to a second place. So that it is easy to suppose that if any member of the jury is a pronounced Christian Scientist there will be no unanimous verdict for conviction, and that if any member is as pronounced in his anti-Scientist views there will be no unanimous verdict for acquittal.

This is not to charge any juror with dishonesty, but is written in the clear recognition of religious bias and of the compelling influence of such bias. That is the danger involved in submitting to a jury any question where religious prepossessions will be an operative impulse.

The Constitution of 1894 provides that "The free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship, without discrimination or preference, shall forever be allowed in this State to all mankind."

To the Christian Scientist "healing" is a part of his religion, and he considers that the right to "heal" is guaranteed by the provision just quoted. That provision, however, goes on still further to state:

"But the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licentiousness or justify practises inconsistent with the peace or safety of the State."

The general public is doubtless thoroughly confident that there have been numerous instances of sickness which have been dealt with by Christian Scientist practitioners and which have issued fatally, but which, under ordinary treatment, would have been cured. That, however, does not altogether cover the ground, for it is not certain that cases which, under ordinary treatment, have issued fatally might not have been saved by a Christian Scientist practitioner. That may be yielding more than some would be disposed to allow, but it never does any harm to be generous.

One Point Around Which the Battle Is Sure to Wage

But there remains one point around which the battle is sure to wage between opposing counsel.

As we understand it, a "practitioner" (interpreting the word in the sense of the law) requires a license. Mr. Cole had no license. Was he a "practitioner"?

Probably no judge and no jurymen would take exception to a man's praying for the recovery of the sick. That has been usage from time immemorial. The clergy of all stripes of religious belief have been accustomed to offer intercessory petitions of that sort, and we do not understand that members of the medical fraternity have ever charged us with trespassing upon their preserves by so doing.

Now, the question to be argued is whether the Christian Scientist healer plays any other role than that of devout petitioner. Does he do anything more than pray for his patient's recovery? Does he CLAIM to do anything more than that? If not, why does he use the word "treatment"?

He will probably assert and confess that all healing energy comes from God. Has the practitioner, then, no part in the healing process? If he has not, in what just and authorized sense of the word can he then be said to "treat" his patient and to open an office for "treating" him and cause to be printed advertisements that he will give "treatment"?

In all of the foregoing we have not been arguing the question. If settlement of the new cult are doing good we all want them to have unhindered opportunity so to do.

If they are keeping within the spirit and intention of the law they should be encouraged.

But the whole situation is more or less a confused one.

It is time that the confusion was dissipated, and we should be glad to be assured that the pros and cons of the problem are going to be presented by legal counsel that are a match for the occasion, and that the jury box is going to be filled by twelve men that are sufficiently free from the control of bias to render a verdict that is according to the facts.

In view of all the circumstances in the case one will scarcely expect a unanimous verdict either for the plaintiff or the defendant.

In this column to-morrow Dr. Parkhurst will be answered by Eugene R. Cox, of the Christian Science Committee on Publication, who will state the views of his church on the case of Willis Vernon Cole, now before the courts.

Ambition

By BERTON BRALEY

YOU can pray, if you will, to be made a "good loser,"
To be schooled in defeat and to fall with a grin,
But what I will ask—and I guess I'm the chooser—
Is not to be loser at all—but to win!
If I don't—well, I'm just like the average sinner,
I'll try to be nervy in spite of my fail;
But, Lord, let me know what it is to be winner,
A good one, perhaps, but a winner, that's all!

Let me play the game fair—though I'm grateful for favors—
Let me stand on my feet—though a boost does no harm—
But teach me to see when the enemy wavers,
And help me to strike with the strength of my arm.
Some poets say, "Ah, but the game's worth the playing.
Though failure should hold you forever in thrall."
Perhaps, but I'm in it to win, so I'm praying
To be on the square—but a winner, that's all!

The world is filled full of its excellent losers,
Who toil and who moil in monotonous wise,
While the winners are riding in autos and cruisers
And tasting the glory that victory buys.
Let some one else act as the driver and spinner,
Let some one else stay 'mid the poor and the small,
The game is to win—and I want to be winner,
A good one, perhaps, but a winner, that's all!

The Choral Dance of Suns

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A READER of the AMERICAN, interested by the recent discoveries concerning the motion of the sun and the earth through space, asks how it can be expected that we shall some day find ourselves in the immediate neighborhood of the great star Vega, toward which the solar flight is now carrying us at the rate of about fourteen miles per second, since Vega itself must also be in motion.

If the motion of Vega were across our line of sight it would be impossible for the earth to be carried into its vicinity. But such is not the fact. Vega is apparently trying to meet us. At least there are observations which show that its approach is at the rate of some forty miles per second. If we subtract the fourteen miles per second of the earth's motion there remain twenty-six miles per second which must be due to the motion hitherward of Vega itself.

It is true, however, that a small part of Vega's motion is crosswise, so that Lee sun and Vega are not rushing to meet one another like two locomotives traveling in opposite directions on the same track. They will never come into actual collision, so far as we can tell, but they are almost certain to approach indefinitely closer to each other than they are at present.

All of the stars within the circle surrounded by the Milky Way appear to be affected by these strange motions. Some conspicuous stars seem to be going in the same general direction as the sun; others are going in almost exactly the opposite direction. They are like dancers upon a floor, surrounded by a dense fringe of onlookers, represented by the millions of stars which compose the Milky Way, and which apparently have no tendency to leave their circle and join the dance. To carry the image further, the inter-galactic stars, of which our sun is one, resemble the waltzers on the deck of a great Atlantic liner on the "Captain's Night"; a stream of couples passing up the deck on one side and another stream passing down on the other, while all around them crowd the watchers, admiring the spectacle, listening to the music, but keeping off the floor.
